EER LEADERS, the University lost by the death of its foremost undergraduate—the man through whose efforts our football and baseball teams have reached their present high standard. The problem of capable filling his position this fall could not be solved by any former member of the team, and it was decided to allow the undergraduates to choose by popular ballot two representative Pennsylvania men to fill this difficult position.

Yesterday two such men, who are capable to every way of performing this important duty, were selected. It behooves every undergraduate to loyally support the leaders they have chosen, and that will be the means of maintaining an excellent standard of support to alma mater and her teams.

THIS AFTERNOON'S GAME. On Franklin Field this afternoon the football team will meet the Lehigh eleven. It is the first game of the season of 1906. The team is off to a good start. It is the duty of every undergraduate to show his loyalty to those who have the honor to represent them on the gridiron, and let everyone by his support help increase that Pennsylvania spirit. Each man has a part to play. Let him do it well, and the result cannot but reflect credit and glory upon all concerned.

ways remember him for his unflagging courtesy. The members of the faculty feel that they have lost a friend, whose interest and counsel they could always depend on. I have no changes to announce in the courses of the first and second years. All the electives of the third year given last year will be repeated this year. Professor William W. Mikell will conduct a course on 'The Conflict of Law.' The subject of this course is one of great practical importance to law students in a country with forty odd separate State jurists.

A combination of circumstances has prevented us from offering the subject for several years. This defect has been a subject of regret and a good deal of anxiety. I am therefore very glad to be able to announce the re-establishment of the course.

The secret way of helping yourself to develop into a high-minded member of the bar is to realize from today on who it is that the law is worthy of being called a profession. What you need is to be in place before you at the start the professional ideal, the ideal of service, realizing the vital character of the service you will be called upon to perform. If you do this I believe you will find that when you leave here the simple rules of correct professional conduct which you will hear from us will be a part of yourselves, while for the more difficult problems of our complicated modern life you will have developed a moral sense which will not play you false. In short, you will become what you have the right to become, not only lawyers, but high-minded men with the full sense of your professional obligations.

Vice-President Smith and other members of the faculty also made addresses.

This is the only department of the University which shows a decrease in the number of students according to the registration figures. The decrease, however, will not be complete for several weeks, and by that time there will probably be an increase in all of the departments. It is probable that the four thousand mark will be reached.

The other departments opening yesterday were the Veterinary, which held its exercises at noon, Dean Pier- son and Dr. Smith addressing the students, and the Medical Department, which opened at 6 P.M. Dr. Edward Martin, former Director of the Department of Health and Charities, now occupies the principal address at the reception to Freshmen, which followed.

The Law School was opened at eleven o'clock by Dean Lewis. He said:

"On behalf of the faculty it gives me pleasure to welcome the students of the Law Department.

"For many years the senior professor in the Law Department was Mr. George Tucker Bingham. Mr. Bingham died at Leamington, R.I., on July 26th. He was born in this city on May 24, 1836. He came to the bar in 1861. He rose rapidly in his profession, and for the last twenty-five years of his life was one of the acknowledged leaders of the Philadelphia Bar. In 1885 he was elected to a chair in this Department. For many years he taught the subject of equity, and his book on "The Principles of Equity" has been since its publication and is probably destined to remain the leading elementary text-book on that subject. In 1898 the volume of his private business, and the fact that he was no longer a young man, obliged him to curtail to a comparatively small volume his work in this department. Last spring his health obliged him to tender his resignation to the Board of Trustees, which was regretfully accepted by them. While his principal life work was in the active practice of his profession, his services to the department were many and significant. His legal literary labors and the legal literary labors of the late Judge Hazmade this Law School familiar to the profession throughout the United States. They gave the school a national reputation. As a teacher he will be remembered by the present members of the alumni as one who had the gift of clear expression and the instinct to drill thoroughly into the minds of his students the elementary principles of the subject which he felt it essential that they should know. As men they will be-
