TEAM PRACTICES AT WINSLOW JUNIOR COLLEGE FOR CORNELL GAME

PREPARATION FOR LAST GAME OF SEASON NEARLY OVER.

Ziegler and Draper to Oppose Cornell's Best Line Men in Contest for All-American Team.

Yesterday morning the members of the varsity not attending classes took a five-mile walk over the rough roads which lead to the Jersey woods. Their breathing and the sound of their steps was heard all along the road, and when they reached the woods, when all had returned from Massachusetts, good times were had by all in the fresh air.

The men spent much of their time in studying, accomplishing much more than possibly any of the players in the Michigan game.

The afternoon was spent in running and sprinting to strengthen the legs for the examinations. Hollenback, who was not present Monday, reported for practice.

After the practice the coaches gave a blackboard talk, followed by a half hour walk, after which all the boys were retired. All rights were being at ten o'clock.

All realize that the coming contest will be of the greatest importance to the team, and all the more determined to make it the best for the season.

The evening drill was spent in running, and the next day the team will be in training for the Princeton game.

The past results established by the team, who are entered in today's contest, against the Navy, are all in favor of the Cadets. The Massachusetts institute of Technology defeated Harvard in a dual meet and also broke their perfect record in every way.

The Harvard baseball team is in its last six games against Cornell and will face the Cadets, the team that has defeated the riva. by big scores. Last Saturday the Cadets lost to the strong Syracuse team in a close game at West Point on November 20th.

The proceeds of this sale, as in the past, will be donated to the association for the development of their teams.

The soldiers and sailors will return to Franklin Field next Saturday for their annual ballot after having tried for one year the experience of meeting at Princeton. The present indicates that the occasion will be held. The Cadets will not follow their pennant for breaking precedents, but will sit for one half in the same position. The team will be in attendance and will join in the analysis of each race.

The past records established by the team, who are entered in today's contest, against the Army, are all in favor of the Navy, which is expected to be a good race and for the game as any since the founding of the schools of the two branches of the service first met here in 1849.

Many have been won for President Roosevelt, both in the home stand—where the Navy cords will be—where the Midshipmen will enjoy the south stand, where the Army cords will be, and have their choice of seats in the permanent stands to be opened.

There is no doubt that the President will attend, and if he does, the notables who will be on Franklin Field on Saturday will be A. E. Van Valkenburgh, W. H. J. W. H. Wilson, retired; Lieutenant-Commodore R. M. Young; Colonel W. S. Scott, Superintendent of the Military Academy; Professor S. M. Terry, who has charge of athletics at Annapolis, and Professor F. P. Pierce, who sits in the same capacity at West Point.

The seating capacity around the field on Saturday, when the wooden stands which have been in front of the audience for the past five years, will be 28,500. Of this number the Navy, Army and the University each will have a third of the total.

The Navy and Army stands were not sold, but are all available. The Navy is now the most enjoyable occasion, and reflected the most on the field of work which lay open to the association. He emphasized very strongly his interest and enthusiasm.

After President R. H. Macy had delivered his address upon the occasion, and Ralph J. Walpole, president of the Junior Class, called attention to the final results of Junior week, refreshments were served.

Altogether the evening proved a most enjoyable occasion, and reflected great credit on the committee.
