One of the noticeable and unfortunate features of the spring athletic season of 1909 was the failure to play out the schedule of interclass contests. As soon as the then Sophomore class had clinched its hold on the Dean's and Juniors' swimming suit, every university which derived by the students who would have materially improved their seasons showing could have won baseball and cricket, and laughter would have accompanied Take, for example, the people of Malay. Hundred! of years ago they had reached a standard of life much higher than the one possessed by them today. The English, on entering the peninsula found the affairs of state in a deplorable condition. The people themselves had few ideas about what the economic conditions of a country should be, and the Sultan used his power for selfish motives.

The English would have materially improved their seasons showing could they have won baseball and cricket, and laughter would have accompanied the exception of the breaststroke race. This will be omitted, owing to the addition of a race in which the contestants will wear their street clothes. This race will be the big feature of the evening. Every contestant will be compelled to wear an ordinary winter street suit and have on shoes and a swimming suit or underclothes. No lightweight house jackets will be permitted. As this meet will be open to the public, and ladies are expected to attend, every contestant must wear his swimming suit.

The men will make the trip to Baltimore on Saturday for a dual meet with the Baltimore Athletic Club.

The program for tonight is: 100-foot novice, 200-foot handicap, 500 yards handicap, 200 yards handicap, plunges for distance, fancy diving, street clothes race, swimming on back.

Lecture by Alleynce Ireland.

Alleynce Ireland delivered an interesting lecture yesterday afternoon in the Widener lecture room of the Museum on "Tropical Colonization: A Study of European Administration in the Far East." He said in part: "A line might be drawn from east to west around the world, dividing it into two parts. To the north of this line would all the land with an average temperature below 60° F., where all the advancement in civilization in the last five hundred years has been made. To the south of the line we have the tropical climate, where retrogression of learning has steadily been growing. Take, for example, the people of Malay. Hundreds of years ago they had reached a standard of life much higher than the one possessed by them today. The English, on entering the peninsula found the affairs of state in a deplorable condition. The people themselves had few ideas about what the economic conditions of a country should be, and the Sultan used his power for selfish motives.

Since the English have taken control of the country things have been greatly changed. Good roads have been built, water works have been installed and the tin mines explored. The people, however, are not satisfied with the present government, but no foreign nation could rule these people and have them contented."

The additional hour for the third-year class in Equity Practice is: 100-foot novice, 200-foot handicap, 500 yards handicap, 200 yards handicap, plunges for distance, fancy diving, street clothes race, swimming on back.

in the White House demanding a fair chance for all the people, rich or poor, that the Republic may have a fair chance.

“We hear much of the slim. The slim is just as much of the per cent. you will take. If 5 per cent. there is no slim problem, if 25, it bums large. It pays to build bad economies that wreck the home. That is the reason of the fight. As I said, it is just a question of greed and of the cold indifference that is the reason of the fight. ‘Am I my brother’s keeper?’ In that way the nation—generation that is coming has to take sides. Which side are you on?”

“刍 the young men of today have got to fight it to a finish. New York will be, every growing city in the land—and more and more ours is getting to be a land of cities—will be the young men of today make up their minds they shall be. And those twenty years will tell the story of whether we shall last as a people or not. Noble are the ends they choose.”

Orchestra Concert To-Night.

The University Orchestra has volunteered the following program of popular music in connection with an entertainment by the Small Boys’ Club at University House tonight:

News of the Crews.

The crew candidates are working regularly and the standard of training is high, but the number of candidates is not encouraging. More men should report for Varsity practice if we are to have a winning crew this year. The Froshmen have quite a number of husky men out, and undoubtedly will develop a good four besides the eight.

Sophomore Class Meets.

At a meeting of the Sophomore Class yesterday afternoon in Room 206, College Hall, Raymond French was elected captain of the bowl. He will keep it until June, 1919, when he will be given to the second honor man.

Nurses to Give Dance.

The Nurses’ Alumni Association of the University Hospital will hold their annual dance in Houston Hall on Thursday evening, February 7th. The University Orchestra has been engaged to furnish the music.

Truman Dental Society to Meet.

James Truman Dental Society will meet on Thursday, January 31st, and alternate on Thursday evenings. Signed: J. A. Burdick, president.

University Quartette Concert.

The University Quartette will give a concert at the University Club this afternoon.

GRAND — "The County Chairman."

Macyln Arbuckle and his "County Chairman" Company is at the Grand Opera House this week. Crowded houses have been the rule wherever Macyln Arbuckle in George Ade's quaint comedy, "The County Chairman," has been presented. So many are the amusing scenes and laughable lines of the "County Chairman" that it is necessary to mention them at this time. Suffice it to say that laughter and tears are interspersed.

As suggested by the title, interest naturally centres in the name of Macyln Arbuckle as Jim Hacker, who invents the role with a neatness and method that establishes him as a comedian of the first rank. The play is essentially in keeping with Mr. Arbuckle's methods and personality and his interpretation is one which has found favor with all classes of theatregoers, as it is virile, and honest and true to the common.

Huckers are also divided in the droll interpretation of Sassafras Livingston, a colored gentleman, played by Harry Maxwell, who has caught the fancy of true lovers of comedy. Mr. Maxwell has given certain touches to the part which make it stand out more prominently in the production, and his entrance and exit are occasions for succession of laughter. The remaining members of the cast are equally well placed, and the stage management leaves nothing to be desired.

A. J. Peterson, 1006 Walnut St.
"To be appropriately dressed gives one a satisfaction which nothing else can give." No one appreciates this sentiment more than a college man.
