A meeting of the Ivy Ball Committee was held at noon yesterday in the trophy room, Houston Hall. The matter of changing the date of the ball from April 13th to April 12th was discussed, however, was the matter of inaugurating fraternity badminton, the decision followed by Yale and Cornell but has never been taken up by Penn. It is at a matter of much importance, and although it was not finally decided by the committee whether or not it would make this new departure, it is expected that the matter will be taken up at the next meeting as the new scheme made upon the different members of the committee that the scheme of changes will be made, and will very likely adopt it at their next meeting.

The Wharton system does not: First, it affects an outside the Wharton School; third, it reduces cheating to a minimum; fourth. It graduates men and lower plane of ethics and motality.

Our discussion of the Wharton school "honor system" has been widely misunderstood. We have ever questioned that the system is performing a useful service in eli-timating cheating almost entirely from the Wharton School and for its practical results we heartily approve it.
We have never said otherwise than this, although our arguments evidently have been misconstrued.
Our
only motive in mentioning the disad-Vantages of the system was to indicate that there Is a nobler and better thing than reducing honor to a system; that there is something (and the above editorial tries to explain what that Is) which has never been given a place in faculty or student life every class, although it has been used in some. We have attempted to show that unless this is tried in all classes, obody can prove that it cannot suc-cceed. We would like to see it tried, but if its first mention meets with such a clamor of disapproval, we are not prepared for what is beyond our conception. The next best thing in the Wharton System; we have never denied that it is doing a good work.
A practical result speaks louder than a dream of ideals. Whatever is the outcome of testing its examine-tees in all departments of the College should stop. If ideals will not do it, the Wharton School "honor system" will.

Then let us be consistent. Those who say that the system is
denied that it is doing a good work.

Grant—Low Doeksteder's Minstrels.

Low Doeksteder believes that he has accomplished the ambition of his life this season in building up a minstrel entertainment that for completeness, beauty of scenic environment and perfection of every detail that makes up a great minstrel entertainment has never been equalled. This is no small task in the field of amusement. Managers in other lines have new plays, new operas, but the basis of the minstrel entertainment is always the same; and demands the most extraordinary ingenuity to give a new originality and variety to old established form. From beginning to end the Doeksteder Minstrel Company will present a program at the Grand Opera House this week that is not only new but novel. Every act, every feature has been under the direction of the famous minstrel and has had his personal attention. It will arouse pleasant anticipations to announce that he will appear in a new monologue entitled "The Editor of the Bungtown Cocker," in which he will show the trials and tribulations of the rural editor in his sanctum sanctorum.

News from Other Colleges.

Every candidate responded to the first call for baseball candidates at Princeton. Monday evening the Taylor head coach, and Capt. Cooney are in charge.

Barnstorm, last year's champion of the New England League, defeated Harvard in basketball Saturday night by a score of 20-11, at Hanover.

Cornell expects to enter a team in the one-mile invitation intercollegiate relay race at Troy, tonight. The small number of men reporting for indoor track work at Ithaca thus far is evidently causing considerable anxiety.

The Princeton Triangle Club's schedule for this season includes 12 performances of "The Mummy Monarch," one more than last year. They will make a western trip, visiting Indianapolis, Columbus, Cincinnati and Pittsburgh, and the Eastern trip will include New York, Philadelphia, New York and Washington.

Lacrosse team candidates at Harvard have been called out for preliminary practice. Yale and Harvard have decided not to hold the debate in French that has been announced.

The English Department Faculty at Princeton are planning to train a company of undergraduates to give a performance of Christopher Marlowe's "Original History of Dr. Faustus." The date has not been fixed, but will probably be some time in April.
