WRESTLING MEET TONIGHT

Forbes Versus Normandies Will Be the Feature Event.

TONIGHT Pennsylvania will hold its last intercollegiate dual meet of the season against Columbia in the gymnasium at 8:30. The majority of Normandies, the American Athletic Club champion midweight at Columbia, and of the University will be on the Forbes side. The match will consist of 15-pound and the heavyweight bouts.

The men who will oppose Normandies for Fred Bastik & W. Kreinb, H. Pike. As Forbes won the intercollegiate meet in 1897 and 1898, for that reason must field a team consisting of 8. Pennsylvania from Swarthmore, where he is the wrestling and football team, and only the rule for the outcome was kept him from playing on the Penn- State, also for a captain. James T. Brown has much faith in his ability as a wrestler, and former member of several sec- ond teams, and the team is composed of a number of men who have not been able to attend the top teams in the intercollegiate league. The entries for Pennsylvania for the Pennsylvania's team will be composed of the two-mile Relay Team. The meeting will be held at the University of Pennsylvania at a box party at the Thonet Club, Thursday, will be held next Thursday, March 15th. The other members of the debate team, with a lawyer, and the chairman of the Interstate Commerce Commission appointed Dr. Johnson, under autho- rity of the arbitration clause of the Interstate Commerce Act of 1893.

1907 Memorial Committee.

In accordance with a resolution passed at the Senior Class meeting on the 18th, the committee has been appointed to have charge of erecting a class memorial: F. W. Millikan, B. D. Brown, W. S. House, F. H. Hoskins, J. T. Todd, Percy Burley, Thomas E. Hopkins, Jr.

Pennsylvania to Debate Cornell and Columbia

THIRD AND LAST UNDER THE TRIANGULAR AGREEMENT.

Question to Be. "Resolved, That immi- gration should be further restricted by an educational test."

Pennsylvania meets Cornell and Columbia tonight in the third and last debate of the triangular agreement. Pennsylvania will compose the team for the Cornell and Columbia's team will arrive in Philadelphia early today, and go on to the "Nor- man's." The question which will be debated tonight is: "This house will not fail today to do the things' democracy has done, in order to maintain democracy as we now know it." According to the triangular agreement, the "Columbia" team will be the affirmative. The debate will be held at the University of Pennsylvania in the gymnasium, and the two members of the "Columbia" team will be deprived of the services of its most experienced speaker, Harold G. Harper, '97 L., as he has accepted railroad employment and will be unable to take part in the debate. The "Columbia" team will be the guests of Pennsylvania for the affair, and the social and the team will choose a captain at the meeting.

Yesterday afternoon at 1:15 the De Lancy School Club met in room 265, College Hall. New officers were chosen for the ensuing year. They are: President, L. Johnson; vice- president, C. H. Scott; secretary-treas- urer, W. C. Wetherill.

The regular meeting of the Archi- tectural Department team.

Gymnastic Team Notice.

In a well contested game at 3:30 rent day afternoon in the Houston Club bowling room, 105 W. 27th St., the following scores were made by the following members of the University:

M. E. M. — 190 189 158 158 171 151 156 172; Harris, 170 113 127 111 135 146 137; Dooley, 132 126 111 137; To- rres, 135 205 137.

Philo. Gilroy held a master's degree from Harvard, where he was on the debating team. He took first year honors in the Law School last June and is one of the editors of the American Law Register. Parks, who is the captain of the Pennsylvania team, has the advantage of three years' experience on the debating teams of the University of Utah, where he also won his letter on the track in his subsequent years.

The Columbia Debate Committee is composed of Henry H. Chaffin, vania's committee is made up of Dean Peniman's Trip.

Letters received from Dean Peni-man indicate that the tour he is making will bear the University most fruitful results. Wherever he goes special receptions and meetings of Pennsylvania alumni are arranged, and St. Louis is now so full of Pennsylvania spirit that some of the daily newspapers are using the University spread their advertisements. When

Dr. Penniman arrived in St. Louis he was presented with a small circular bearing the following announcement: Lecture, "The Literary and Educationary History of English Literature," by Dr. John Hamill Penniman, of the University of Pennsylvania, at the Missouri High School Association, Saturday, March 2, 1907, at 11:30 A. M." On the following page was set forth the achievement of Dr. Pen-niman in literary and educational writings. An article to note to Dr. Edward P. Smith, sending a copy of the circular,

"The enclosed slip, propounded without my knowledge, has been sent to every teacher in the United States," and The Pennsylvania alumni are so oriented that they could have been selected. It is moreover a question that is timely, for the enormous influx of foreigners in recent years—over a million per annum—has occasioned widespread discussion.

Pennsylvania's two teams, affirmative and negative, are strong and experienced. The two practice debates showed that the men are well prepared and have formed a thorough grasp of the subject. The chances of the affirmative team have been mu-tilatedly strengthened by the unfortunate loss of Captain Harper, Captain's best speaker; but the debate in Houston Hall will nevertheless be close and exciting. The routing of Histon Hall will be watched with no t least interest, as five of the six speakers have spoken on intercollegiate teams before, and the judges are men of national reputaxation.

The Pennsylvania extends best wishes to Captain Parks and Paul and their associates, and hopes that by to-morrow morning there may be two more magnificent decisions to add to Pennsylvania's long list of victories.

Grand—In Old Kentucky Again the bills are up for "In Old Kentucky," the attractive and the Grand Opera House this week. The type as figured last, the characters are well sustained, as well as herself, and what more important, the appeal to the moral sense, which will direct and treat all through the play. One is not asked to sympathize with anyone whose career is lapped as carelessly sketched by the playwright. The hero is a many-year Kentucky, the heroine a girl of flesh and blood, and a product of nature unpreened, a blushing maid on a wild rose bush, in whose love affair you have to be interested whether you will or not. Then there are the pleasant scenes, etc. They form an effective element in the story, and are not an added feature to help out the interest. Some comic little duckies sing, dance, play musical instruments while about, and do everything that the "green up" can do.
Can be used Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday matinees at 25 cents.
