President Chas. W. Dabney speaks at Chapel Exercises

"Is THIS AMERICA OF OURS A SUCCESS? was his theme.

It was the last of a series of six expository addresses given by the President this term. The address was delivered yesterday morning after the morning exercises.

"No doubt many of you read in one of our newspapers recently the speech of a pessimistic senator, in which he made the remark, This America of ours is a failure. The country must through some momentous change be destroyed by the number of hours it is, he adduced. Mr. Mallock reviewed briefly the statements made in his two previous addresses. He said that he had discussed Socialism as it was popularly understood, and had shown that manual labor was not the greatest economic fact; that the ability directing the manual labor was responsible for the production of wealth, and that a skilled workman is only a part of the productive power of the community. The young man who has goodly percentage relations to successful men and mind is a success.

"A weed which applies to all men in this country who have received the benefits of education, and what I have to say on this topic can properly be said under the auspices of the Political Club, because in College and students will take up many different forms of work; but in the upper work in which all of you should take part simply as good American citizens, self-government. Remember, in that first place, that to take part in the government of this country in the least mean of necessity to hold office. It means to take an intelligent, disinterested and practical part in the everyday duties of the average citizen, of the city who is not a fossil or a doctrinaire, but who abhors corruption and dislikes inefficiency; who seeks to see done the right thing without regard to party, with genuine equality of opportunity for all, so far as it can be brought about.

"A man may neglect his political duties because he does not believe in the policies of those with ability, by the majority, I. e., the manual laborers, but this would be contrary to human nature. If a limit were to be placed on the amount of labor to be acquired by one man, the limit would necessarily be the last amount for which the man would be willing to render his services.

SEVENTH IN THE INTERCOLLEGIAL CIVIC LEAGUE SERIES.

Active Participation in Ward and District Politics by Educated College Men Urged by Roosevelt.

President Roosevelt is the contributor of the seventh of the Intercollegial Civic League's special articles, which we publish in full this week. This paper was prepared some time ago by the City Club, the good-government association, and is undoubtedly the best of a series of addresses. It is signed with the address delivered by the President before the Harvard Political Club on February 22d. As usual the article is copyrighted by the League.

Instead of at the Executive Committee the Senior citizens will be so honored because they are the recipients and by the Committee under oath will keep the eight signs to be eliminated, it is the incline to believe that the very greatest if not the very greatest men in the class. We must realize that this kind of an achievement is the greatest if not the very greatest honor that it is possible for any man to achieve in their college career— an honor that is unassailable and therefore all the more to be desired and valued by the recipients and by the class who bestow it.

Orchestra Rehearsal.

be present. Martin H. Bickham, the first man in the relay, came to a dead stop at the end of the first two laps, thinking he had run his distance, when still had half a lap to go. This half lost the race at the very beginning, although Cartmell and Hardwick did some fine running in an unsuccessful effort to recover the loss.

On Saturday evening Company I will hold a meet at the first Regiment Armory, 12th and Callowhill streets. The entire for this meet will be practically the same as those of last year, and the fortune of the evening will be the timely relay race by Pennsylvania men under the presidency of Capt. Haslett and Taylor.

Gymnastic meet Saturday

A gymnastic meet with Haverford College will be held next Saturday afternoon at Haverford. Pennsylvania's entries are: Horizontal bar, Scalabert, Klassen, and Kyle; railing, Klassen, Kyle, Beckford, Levy, Brookey. A new man on the team will be Slocum, G., who will sing the clubs.

Prize for Ivy Ball Poster.

The Ivy Ball Committee has decided this year to offer a five-dollar prize for the best design of a poster for the Ball. Competition is open to any student of the University, and designs must be submitted by March 19th. L. Lee, 3537 Locust street.

The committee suggests that the poster include a girl in evening costume and a drawing appropriate for such a ball. The words "Ivy Ball" and its date, "April 12th," must also appear on the poster. Two, three or four colors may be introduced in the design. The size of the poster is limited to 56 by 18 inches. It is especially desired that a number of designs be submitted in order that the poster be a truly representative one. The committee reserves the privilege to reject any or all the designs. Announcement will be made of the award on the day following the closing of the competition. For further information apply to L. Lee or J. A. Abrams.

Lyric—"The New York Idea." Liandolph Mitchel's home city is enthusiastic over his play, "The New York Idea," as were New York, Chicago and Boston. Mrs. Pikes and the Manhattan Company played this delightful satire to crowded houses in the Lyric last week. It is a pleasure to see the appreciation with which this performance was received. There is no question of the enjoyment to be had from this picturesque, lively, sparkling dialogue and watching Mrs. Pike's off and charming acting and the like work of the Manhattan Company. It is one of the best groups of players on the contemporary stage. For a comparison of Mrs. Pikes one would look far and few equal her in the delineation of a real warm-hearted spontaneous comedy spirit, with an underrun of genuine feeling that lugs at the heartstrings. In many seasons since Mrs. Pike had a role that showed as well her art in its lighter phases. As usual the star is most generous to her associates. Mrs. Mason, Mr. Alfson, Mr. Hurley, Mr. Chilton and others have opportunity to increase their reputation.

Marie O'Shea, in whose acting there is a special interest, as she is a Philadelphian, comes forward as a pleasing character consciousness. It is hardly necessary to say that the settings are in excellent taste and that the stage management is admirable.—Ady.

Garrison—"Clothes." Grace George and her talented company are at the Garrison for a two weeks' engagement. The play in which Miss George is seen, "Clothes," made a pronounced hit in New York this season when it ran for nearly six months at the Manhattan Theatre there.

The story of "Clothes" concerns the misfortunes of a young woman whose father at his death left her penniless in a circle where money is everything. She is deserted by her lover who has an income by her lawyer, who provides her with money. She attempts to keep up appearances in the set that moves too speedily for her, and when she finds her effort hopeless she determines to capture and marry a respectable young man who comes along with a fortune. He falls in love with her and proposes, but when touched by his eloquence, she confesses she is marrying him to provide herself with means to gratify her mania for furs. Nevertheless she becomes engaged to wed. When the lawyer, whose wife has deserted him and who hopes to wed the girl, hears that she is engaged, he makes it appear that she has knowingly lived on money provided by him, and there is a temporary parting of the3 betrothed couple. But the unexpected occurs to the final act. The girl gives up her vulgar friends and her extravagance and goes to live happily with a respectable man, who, fortunately, is rich.—Ady.

Swimming Meet Entries.
Enteries from all the members of the intercollegiate Swimming Association, excepting Brown and Columbia, have been received for the individual championship meet in the gymnasium on Saturday evening. Each college is entitled to send two men for each event, and it is expected that those that have not yet sent in entries will do so in a day or two.

Grand—"In New York Town."

"In New York Town," Hortig & Seaman's new musical oddity, is the attraction billed for the Grand Opera House.

"In New York Town," as the title implies, is based and founded on happenings in the great metropolis served up in a lighthearted and comedy style for amusement purposes and as a novelty to introduce clever comedians and singers of note, also a bevy of handsome and stately show and chorus girls. All in all there are fifty-five members in the new musical oddity, and the costuming, scenes, stage and electrical effects are among the foremost that have ever been seen on any stage in recent years.

"In New York Town" is the joint effort of Willard Holcombe and Loney Hawk, with the music was especially written by Tull Taylor and Cliff Monk, and comprises eighteen concise and distinct song hits.

"In New York Town," is not a hodgepodge by any means, but one of those effortless and up-to-date musical oddities that are sure to please even the most fastidious of audiences from the closing of the band full of the charm on the last act.

The matinee will be on Tuesday, whereas the same at the higher price of 25 cents throughout the entire house, never before reserved.

Ants and Millipedes are insects of the order Hymenoptera, (which includes the bees, wasps, flies, and saw flies) and are relatively harmless except in the case of the few species which inject their poison into their enemies. They are of great service in the destruction of pests and plant parasites. The ants are not only terrors to insects but to vertebrates as well, particularly to the domestic fowl. The bull ant of Australia is reported to be the most dangerous ant in the world, killing not only cows and horses, but even men if they are in the way of its path.
