an excellent idea, new this year, was the introduction of a glee chorus. There is no doubt, however, that the trial of part singing in the Mask and Wig show is still in infancy and that there is a splendid chance to develop a good thing. In other words, it has been shown that glee singing can add show is still in its infancy and that one of the main in the future should be to obtain good singers as well as good dancers and to teach the men of the cast to sing in harmony in certain specialties, instead of in unison. The Mask and Wigaret and chorus—should have a musical director who, in working in conjunction with Mr. Morgan, could help him to turn out mezzo-sopranos and choir girls who are as accomplished singers as they are dancers. More attention to artistic musical effects cannot change Mask and Wig tradition in other respects and can undoubtedly, though not without the expenditure of time and money, increase the annual show's charm as an entertainment.

The baseball squad has returned home and will play again on Franklin Field to-morrow. Every man on the team deserves congratulations for the success of the Southern trip, and the whole team should receive a hearty reception. From now on the under graduate must show the interest and enthusiasm that will help to make a championship team. Ill natured "knocking" must not be allowed to spoil the season when so much practical good can be accomplished by eliminating it.

Amherst Musical Clubs are the guests of the University to-day and Pennsylvania and the New Englanders will give their first combination concert tonight in the Gymnasium. The combined Musical Clubs of the University have had a successful season thus far and have proved that they are more than worthy of the interest and support of every undergraduate. We hope that the concert tonight will be attended by the majority of Pennsylvania men. The Amherst Clubs are among the best known and most popular in the East, and the concert is sure to be a good one.

The Mask and Wig annual musical comedy, "Herr Lohengrin," has pleased thousands of Philadelphians for a week and takes its place among the other successes of Mask and Wig history. A more extensive trip than usual, including Wilmington, Washington, Pittsburg and Buffalo, will end a brilliant season for this year's show.

The Mask and Wig is famous for clever dances and striking costumes, and in these respects "Herr Lohengrin" has never been surpassed. An excellent idea, new this year, was the introduction of a glee chorus. There is no doubt, however, that the trial of part singing in the Mask and Wig show is still in infancy and that there is a splendid chance to develop a good thing. In other words, it has been shown that glee singing can add show is still in its infancy and that one of the main in the future should be to obtain good singers as well as "Wondershod. William Mitchell's picturesquespectacle, which has been described as the successor to the "Wizard of Oz" and "Babes in Toyland," is the attraction at the Grand Opera House this week. The story alone of the piece is a fascinating one. It comes from the German Fairy land of the Dancing Princesses by the Brothers Grimm, and deals with eight wandering road agents, who are, incidentally, princes of the royal blood, and who suddenly find a fall in love with the eight charming daughters of the King of Hord; but, as runs the course of all true love, it has its troubles, and in the end, the gallants are able to assure the return of the passion, a local danger of hearts is called in, and from a mixture of his bravest, which he serves to the daughters of the King, arises the basis of a comic opera star part. After much music, many ensemble numbers, a host of pretty girls charmingly ensconced in clicking dances, the ploteweaves, and restores the daughters to the King; in addition, he acquires quite an assortment of sombreros. The matinees will be as usual on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday at the popular price of 25 cents throughout the entire house, every seat reserved.
