The University baseball team and Yale will meet in battle royal this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock on Franklin Field.

With last year's fresh on the minds of the New Haven ball players are determined to lower the 'Varsity's colors and return home victorious. It was only after one of the most sensational games witnessed on Franklin Field last year that Yale was forced to accept defeat. The visitors made a splendid rally in the ninth inning, scoring three runs, but Yale was saved of a defeat.

Pennsylvania was the winner in her fielding alone. Hay, who pitched, was twenty-one years old, and in entering the game from nervousness, but managed to get out of numerous tight places by the sensational fielding of his teammates. Everybody was in the game all the time.

The uncertainty of scoring the bases of the two aims this season makes it very difficult to give any opinion one way or the other. Pennsylvania defeated Columbia, who in turn lost to Cornell and then the Ithicans triumphed over Yale. By this method it would seem that the Red and Blue should decisively defeat Yale. On the other hand that the former will destroy Princeton, who only last Saturday defeated the 'Varsity, and in turn were stove under and under Yale, showing that the New Haven Nine is a 'hot' one.

The Yale team comprises a number of heavy hitters. This is especially in the case of the two young brothers, each of whom secured a single hit in a game played only a week ago. Either Simpson or Brady will do the pitching for the Yale. Line up and batting order:

Yale—Chapin; right field; T. Jones, catcher; Kline, captain, shortstop; Sweeney, first base; Church, third base; Madden, left field; Segal, second base; Clifford, centre field; Meyer or Parsons, pitcher.

NEWS EDITOR FOR TODAY'S ISSUE
W. K. JOHNSON.

The Yale baseball team will play the University of Franklin Field this afternoon. Naturally the game is re- garded as important, both here and in New Haven, while the chances of winning appear to be nearly equal.

The Cornell team defeated Yale, however, and Columbia, who was de- feated by Pennsylvania, defeated Cor- nell earlier in the season. These facts do not show the relative merits of the teams concerned, but merely prove the variability of the game. College baseball is one of the most inconsistent of games, and the poor showing made against Princeton last week is no indication of what will happen in-day. This largely depends upon the pluck and gameness of the individual teams. In baseball the spirit of the teams makes considerable difference, we believe, and if Pennsylvania remains cool headed and controls any nervousness the players may feel at first, we are confident that the team which defeated Yale in 1906-07 can do it again even though we fight against odds as last year, when the second game resulted in a victory of 13 to 0 for Yale, an indication that the New Haven university had the better team.

As long as Saturday, the under- graduates must help to inspire the team with their own spirit, and the cheering must be made hearty and consistent. If the team will profit to- day by such cheering as we heard on Franklin Field last week, we cannot doubt the outcome of the game.

Spring Football Practice.

Coach George Brooks, of Swarth-more, has been trying to teach the football candidates a new game. It is a combination of football and basketball. It is played upon a field about one hundred yards long and thirty yards wide, generally with five men on a side, although as many may play as there is room for. The play is started by one man on the side hav- ing possession of the ball throwing it to one of his teammates, who must catch it before it touches the ground. It may be thrown in any direction but must not be thrown across the goal line. The man receiving it then throws it to a teammate or if he wishes he runs with it, but he must not run any more than ten yards with out throwing the ball. When the ball touches the ground it goes to the op- ponent on the spot, or if any man run- ning with it is touched by an oppo- nent before he goes two steps, the ball goes to the opposing team. The ball may be kicked and goals may be scored from drop or place kicks.

The game was designed to acquaint men with the art of handling long passes, as the game holds fair to be more open next season. Among those who are now taking part in the practice are Captain Pol- ler, who is third-year man and will probably play the team this sea- son, but two of last year's team have returned to college and will not be picked and sent to Swarth- more to play the team there.
