
Before the largest and most enthusiastic crowd of the season the Varsity defeated Swarthmore on Saturday by the score of 12 to 2. Some good games, several times tense, and more than usually incidentally endowed by the University.

Both in offensive and defensive playing the Garnet team showed great skill and teamwork, showing great strides forward in both departments of the game. It was the ability to take advantage of their opponents mistakes which enabled the University to win two touchdowns. The first occurred after three minutes of play in the first half, which behind the Garnet's goal 40 yards to the ball. Late in the game a high snap was caught by James and Money snatched up the ball, running twenty yards for a touchdown.

The second touchdown came as a result of a long pass from Regan, although Williams was suffering a slight injury at the time. The pass resulted from a carryback and kicked a beautiful goal from the field. He made three other unselfish attempts.

Captain Falwell played a great game, particularly on defense, time and again breaking through the Garnet interference to throw the man for a loss. Green, at the other halfback, checked many of the Swarthmore line plumps besides carrying the ball well. In the matter of picket openings Holmes showed excellent blocking and the line held up and broke through until affording the blockers opportunities for many yard runs and passes.

For Swarthmore O'Brien was the choice man on defense. He filled that position, which means character and character is the greatest thing in the world. Service and worth are the first things to put after position, what is right above expediency. Character or personality is supposed by many to be a necessitous influence acquired at birth, and after looking for it in the wrong place. It must be put aside at some time. Garnet is bent in the best direction it can take along is the best way to observe the character, which means a great thing in the world. Service and worth are the first things to put after position, what is right above expediency.

"Personality," he said, "consists largely of sympathy. It may be excessive in the wrong places. It may drift into the too common failure of being mere egotism. But personality, however, may be cultivated by any one, as well as acquired. A man should follow what he sees as the right, not try to fit the mould. The captain of a football team is chosen for his personality. You Wharton men who are too busy to look up in Room 209 or too busy to work are missing the best lesson in practical sociology in the world."

D. M. VRAY TALKS OF WORK ON EXCAVATIONS IN NUBIA

Dr. David Randall McIlvory, curator of the Egyptian section of the Museum of Arts and Science, lectured Saturday afternoon upon the discoveries made by him during his last excavations in Nubia. The results of the expedition, which was instigated by Dr. E. C. Box, were described in detail and illustrated with lantern slides.

The Egyptian explorer told about a period city discovered in lower Nubia between the first and second cataracts of the Nile. Many tablets, upon which were inscriptions in all untranslatable languages, as well as many stone tablets were discovered.

"The discovery of the barred city was the most interesting part of my recent trip," said Dr. Randall McIlvory. "This was in the part of Egypt which I was able to explore, and it was the only discovery I made. It is the most interesting part of my trip."

The city was of great interest to the students who attended the lecture. They were told that the city was the most interesting part of the trip. After the lecture, a discussion was held, and the students were able to ask questions and gain a better understanding of the city.

The attention of our readers is called to our bulletin board service, which will start this week. It is designed to keep the University posted upon what is going on, and will be updated regularly.

The Dean's trophies of recent years are not in their places in the Houston Club trophy room. This is one of the most complete collections of trophies in the country and we have reason to be proud of it.

It should be a matter of College spirit to see that our trophy room is maintained. There has been lately, however, an evident desire to withhold from their proper place not only Dean's trophies but others. Many of these are in fraternity hands it is understood. This is a sad condition and should be notified at once by the men.

Chester—"Lady Windermere's Fan."

No more realistic picture of certain phases of English society life can be found anywhere than in Oscar Wilde's powerful drama, "Lady Windermere's Fan," which the Orpheum Dramatic Stock Company will present this week at the Chestnut Street Theatre. Apart from the powerful moral which "Lady Windermere's Fan" holds out to every intelligent mind, the play is an interesting one from several other view points. It is a serious play and extremely epigrammatic. It teems with cynicisms and brilliant comment upon love, matrimony, divorce and life in general. The story it reveals is an absorbing one and in parts intensely dramatic.

Miss Josephine Lovett will play the role of Lady Windermere and Mr. Innis will be seen as her lord and husband. The important part of the mother will be assumed by Miss Leah Winslow, Miss Helen Reimer, Miss Evelyn Prater, Fred Sumner, Harmon MacGregor, Mark Price and the other members of the company will have equally important roles.

Stage Director Harry McRae Webber promises a splendid and sumptuous production, in fact as magnificent as the one in which Blanche Walsh appeared several years ago.

Park—"At Yale."

It was to have been expected that "Brown of Harvard" would eventually have its dramatic prototype. This play will make its bow at the Park Theatre this evening. It is entitled "At Yale," and has been heralded as one of the most popular of the various college comedies now current on the American stage.

John Murray has provided an excellent production—the scenic presentation of the boat race at New London is said to be remarkably effective and the dressing of the pieces throughout to be appropriate in its picturing of present day university life. There is a competent and carefully selected company.

Daily Practice for Fall Crews.

In preparation for the interclass race, which will take place about October 20th, all the crew clubs with the exception of the Senior crew have been practicing daily on the river. The Senior Department had a crew on the river for the first time on Friday, October 1st, which rowed No. 2 on the Varsity four-oared crew at Poughkeepsie last year, has been re-elected captain of the 1899 eight for this fall.
