ENTHUSIASTIC MASS MEETING

FOUR NEW SONGS TO POPULAR AIRS TRIED WITH SUCCESS.

Speeches by Coaches Torrey, Smith and Murdock and by Members of the Team Predict Victory Today.

With plenty of enthusiasm a large mass meeting of undergraduates assembled in the triangle of the dormitories at 7:00 o'clock last night. The songs and cheers to be used in the Carlisle game to-day were practiced and proved most satisfactory.

All undergraduates will meet at the training house promptly at half-past nine today. Another monster mass meeting will be held and songs and cheers again rehearsed. Carlisle roosters always come prepared to give a successful program, and, with their famous Carlisle Indian band, a large delegation will arrive some time this morning.

F. R. MacMillan, '07 L., led the singing at last night's meeting. The "Red and Blue" was rendered, followed by Donaldson's song to the tune of "Colleen Bawn." The latter proved a great success.

The four other new songs, "School Days," "Poor John," "Honey Boy" and "The Merry Widow Waltz" were also rehearsed and were well received. Head Coach Torrey assured the undergraduates that a victory was in store for the Pennsylvania team to-day, and he said that "this team is a genuine Pennsylvania team and it is surely going to win to-morrow, provided the spirit for which this University is famous is kept in them by the backing of you men; and if you do this, I promise you there'll be some very sad Indians after to-morrow's game." After this Coach Smith delivered a brief speech, in which he said this game, therefore, depends the reputation of the Pennsylvania team. From ging support not waver to-day for an instant. There is hard work to be done and all of us can help.

"The Daily Princetonian" has taken the trouble to misinterpret our views upon the "contract" which has found such favor at that University.
If the editor of that publication were as familiar with the opinions of the students as he is with those of the faculty, his article would lack the sympathy which we have advocated in this column. The editorial which we esteemed contemporary takes exception to this bit of sarcasm would not have been written.

On the other hand our idea of honor is not as new as "The Daily Printonian" seems to imagine. It is rather the idea of honor in vogue at the New Jersey college that seems to us of the novelty type. Our concept of honor is older than the Pharaohs.
Honor is something that cannot be reduced to a time and a place or a system of temporary rules. It is honor which makes a man ashamed of himself when he cheats in an examination; weakness and a fear that he will not stand as well in his work as someone else who he knows does cheat combined with this feeling that this is unjust that makes him copy from a " crib. " What is the honor system?
Perhaps at Princeton there is something so unknown that we cannot speak about it intelligently. But taking it as it is generally supposed to be by persons who do not depend upon a system for their honor, we conceive it to be an agreement between students that no one shall use unfair means in the class room. Such an agreement is at any university more binding than a sense of honor, for the same reason that treaties between nations prevent pickpocketing and smuggling. There is nothing abhorrent about this theory, and if a treaty is the only way to prevent dishonesty, we are hearty in favor of the plan, as we said before.

What we resent is the superior but rather juvenile attitude many men hold toward the Honor System, namely, that it is the ideal. What we should be is in a condition in which we are all gentlemen in the ideal sense. An agreement should not be requisite between gentlemen to "put them on their honor." Such a term is only used by boys who have not yet learned what honor is. We claim that honor should be taught for its own sake. We think that a half-way system which prevents the evils of dishonesty does not teach honor but rather obscures it in the minds of its users for necessity of insuring it.

Museum Receives Egyptian Tablets.
Several stone tablets from recent

NEW EDITOR OF TO-DAY'S ISSUE, T. L. DAILY.

To-day's game with the Indians will demonstrate we firmly believe the supervirority of the University eleven. All other tests up to this time appear insignificant as compared with the struggle that Captain Polwell's men must make before the Carlisle men are defeated. Last year's score of CLOMENTS OF INTEREST OF PENNSYLVANIA.

In every case the College is to have the style and cut of a suit helped by Pennsylvania or more against Brown.

The lift plays the same steady game against the Indians that it did against Brown, they should win.
The key and always are all very well and often are a great part of the game, but the team which employs these qualifications with hardwork, power and a thorough knowledge of football, is the one which is going to come out on top.
While the Indians are the general favorite with outsiders because of their last year's victory, those who know the worth of the Red and Blue team, those who realize what a powerful eleven, backed up by Pennsylvanians spirit, is capable of, have no fear of the outcome of today's battle.

Old Men Nucleus for 1908 Crew.
Eight veteran azimuth will in all probability try for Pennsylvania's Varsity eight at Pongheim's this spring.

Shoemaker, who was unable to row last year on account of sickness, and Drayton, of the 1906 crew, who was in college last year, are both eligible for rowing, and will report for practices in the spring.
Besides these men Captains Ewing, Rogers, Ely, Ballant, Philker, Crooke, captain of the last year Freshman crew; Bradock, Hoffman, and Stack, who will be candidates: Consalas Miles, of the 1907 Varsity, and Phinney, of the 1907 Freshman crew, have both returned this year to college, and this will cause the crew to have a veteran at the tiller ropes.

The superiority of the Varsity over the other rowing men was clearly shown on Wednesday at the Interclass regatta, when the Seniors, composed entirely of a Varsity men, beat the Juniors, who had but two Varsity men.
All the last year's Freshman crew except R. E. Lea are back in college, but as several of the best men were playing football and did not row in the race, the Sophomores crew came in behind the Juniors but beat the Freshmen by two lengths.
Practise on the machines for both Freshman and Varsity crews will start about January in the gymnasium under Coach Ward.

that "all we coaches need to do is to train us into our team the fighting spirit which has won many a game for Penn State." Coach Morace said: "It's very little effort for you men to come out to cheering practices like this, but you can help the team tomorrow to win, and if we win tomorrow, we will have a successful season."

Captain Robert C. Polvett congratulated the men on the excellent cheering, and in a few words showed the necessity of good work in this respect.

"The Indians had luck with them last year and beat us, but I can assure you the tables will be turned to-morrow and Pennsylvania will win." Other members of the team who spoke and foreboded a defeat for the Indians at the hands of the Pennsylvania eleven were Scarlett, Greene, Dwyer and Holden.
