RUGBY TEAM DEFEATS NOMADS

SECOND HALF FOLLOWED THE FIRST WITHOUT INTERRUPTION, Firing THE PLAYERS OUT BY THE END OF THE MATCH.

In a very poorly played and uninteresting game the Pennsylvania Rugby team won from the Nomads a 0-0 tie. The game was held on the Recruit Field. There was no indication of anything but a scoreless tie. The Pennsylvania line up was: Finley, J. A. Harvey, J. A. Harvey, and Goldman; full-back, W. H. Schmidt, representative.

First of a Series of Lectures Given in the Archaeological Museum.

ON SATURDAY Mr. George H. Burton, United States Consul-General at Athens, delivered in Widener Hall a lecture entitled “Greece of To-day.” The lecture is one of a series given under the auspices of the Department of Archeology on Saturday afternoons at 4 o’clock, in Widener Hall of the Free Museum of Science and Art.

Mr. Horhn, a native of New York, was graduated from the University of Michigan in 1885, at the age of nineteen. After graduation he devoted himself to newspaper work, in which he wrote with accuracy as a writer and his efficiency, President Cleveland appointed him United States Consul at Athens in 1885. He remained in Athens four years, becoming known for his own government of the modern Greek language, in which he wrote a monograph on its grammar and pronunciation. In the United States he became literary editor of the Chicago “Times-Herald.”

The talk was a most interesting one, since Mr. Burton is a man with a marked keenness of powers of observation and appreciation of men and manners. His intimate knowledge of modern Greece, made possible by his long residence, rendered him most fit to speak on the subject.

Photographic Society’s Offer.

The Photographic Society of Philadelphia, whose building is at 1722 Arch Street, made an offer to the Camera Club, which has already been accepted by nearly a third of its members.

The offer of publication of this offer should induce a large number of those who have not yet joined the Camera Club to consider and accept its terms—associate membership, which includes all those of voting and holding office, is opened to undergraduate students in the University, besides a monthly lecture, to which those admitted are invited.

NEWS EDITOR OF TO-DAY'S ISSUE

DOUGLAS MAFFEI.

Occasional incursion of sentiment and action in the proper interest of various departments of the University in many matters of interest to the student body has brought many of us to the conclusion that an undergraduate organization in which all the schools have representation is the only solution of a difficulty.

Pennsylvania might study with profit some student organizations as they exist at other universities. The abolition of football at Columbia by an arbitrary vote of those in authority aroused at that institution the lowest protests from undergraduates, but those protests and demands for football were practically ignored. Columbia's students have now drafted a constitution for the organization of a Board of Student Representatives. It is to consist of men from all departments, chosen by popular election.

The rights and privileges of the board as proposed are:

1. To nominate two undergraduate members of the University Committee on Athletics, subject to the approval of the President of the University.

2. To confer at any time with any officer or recognized body of officers of the University, either now in existence or hereafter constituted, on matters of peculiar interest and concern to the student body; and it shall furthermore be the privilege of this board to receive due notice regarding legislation pending before the authorities, affecting the academic, social, or athletic activities of the student body, before such legislation be passed.

3. To refer to the President of the University for consideration matters of peculiar interest and concern to the students.

It may easily be seen that such a board if properly constituted will occupy a position of dignity, responsibility and authority which is to be respected not only by the undergraduates but by the governing authorities of the university. Its functions with certain additions and modifications seem to be those of our own Undergraduate Committee in the College, a body which has more than once demonstrated its practical usefulness in student affairs. How much more important and weighty would be its power and opinions if its acts had the legal support of not 2,000 but more than 4,000 constituents.

Whatever may be said to the contrary, there is a certain jealously between the College and the professional schools which tends to discourage the University in various small matters that nevertheless go to make up great results. When it comes to a question of Pennsylvania spirit there is no difference between departments. Opinions may differ as to whether there is any distinction or not between the schools as to how they shall show that spirit, but the thing is there and always will be. What we refer to now is an occasional disregard on the part of the professional schools for the work of the Undergraduate Committee. This body helps to lead the College. That it should lead the other departments is impossible, although in the expression of the best student sentiment it is frequently entitled to do so morally if not legally. What we at Pennsylvania is a body of representatives that shall include all the excellent features of the present Undergraduate Committee with the additional value of representing all departments. Such an organization, if undertaken in the proper seriousness of responsibility and duty, could accomplish wonders for the University, could lead University spirit as no organization can now do, and would build up a power for the future that would make such an arbitrary action as the abolition of football an utter impossibility.

Inasmuch as this is a university and not merely a college, the men in the College Department must realize that they cannot properly run the entire institution. We are all together under one head, and for the acts of any member of our student body we are equally responsible. A union in sympathy and ideals, an amalgamation of standards and principles, an associated sentiment and purpose, a continuity of action and spirit could all be effected by this means as it now seems could be done in no other way.

TICKETS FROM THE COMMITTEE.
Public Sale of Cornell Penn Tickets. Application for tickets at the private sale for the Pennsylvania-Cornell game has closed and those tickets will be distributed as soon as possible. The public sale opens this evening at Franklin Field and also at United Brothers, Ninth and Chestnut streets. The price of tickets for this game is two dollars each on the north and south stands, two dollars each at the box seats, and one dollar and fifty cents each for tickets on either of the end stands. The demand for tickets at this game is greater than we have ever had before for a Thanksgiving Day game. Cornell is being overwhelmed with the demand for tickets from all her alumni and her students, and it is probable that she will have a larger representation on the day of the game than she has ever had before.
