Columbus; both strong men, who have won games in the college matches throughout the year. As the eight men who have taken part in the matches are shown, however, another question—whether the matches have been played fairly—will arise.

In this respect it is to be hoped that the matches will be conducted in the spirit of fair play which has characterized all previous matches.

The financial support will come from a combination of funds available in the various universities, and it is to be hoped that these funds will be sufficient to cover all expenses.

The matches will be held in the gymnasium of the Ohio State University, and will be broadcast over the radio stations of the various universities involved.

The new systems are so simple that they can be turned on by anyone, and we expect to have them in working order in a short time. The new systems are much better than the old ones, and we are sure that they will be a great improvement.
