YALE WINS INTERCOLLEGES

Pennsylvania's Varsity Swimming and water-polo team will meet Yale to-day in the gymnasium at eight o'clock. The Red and Blue men will give their best in this contest, which will decide the championship of the intercollegiate league. Even if Yale is defeated, however, Pennsylvanians will have to meet the winner of the Yale-Pennsylvania contest, as both the Orange and Black and Blue swimmers will have suffered from a single defeat by them. The first meet with Yale will be entered in the one hundred yards breast stroke will be held, in addition to push Shyrock at all in that event. The Red and Blue relay teams will clip 1:10.30 seconds from the record, should they desire to do so.

The Varsity water-polo team will again meet the Yale men, which is the last meet of the season. Pennsylvania's polo players are in the same position as the swimming team, and want this season's contest to help them to do their best in the upcoming national contests. The entry:

Richards, John, S. Pennsylvania; Graham, Yale; Richards, Oldham; and Mussey.

Death of Stephen Kirk Gillam

Stephen Kirk Gillam, a member of the Wharton School while in the arts course, died suddenly last Thursday night at his home in Langhorne. He was a student of very high character and his academic standing was, as far as can be learned, the best. On March 10th, at a meeting of the Sigma Xi Society, which for scientific students corresponds to Beta Theta Pi for arts students, he was elected a member.

NEWS EDITOR OF TODAY's ISSUE.

HABER, R. MARTIN.

We are glad to state upon authority ing and anxious to do something that will convince the student body of the Club's desire to secure their better managers. What steps may be practicable are not yet known, but it is in now apparent that whatever can be done to destroy the dissatisfaction which every year finds voice at this time will be done by the Club management.

Since the publication of the letter from Mr. Howard K. Mohr, the Club's business manager, the true explanation for the unpopular condition of affairs—namely the present method of distributing tickets—has come to light. It is unfortunate that Mr. Mohr's letter did not adequately explain the motives and attitude of the Mask and Wig Club. It is not surprising that undergraduates have felt ignored, but that the club has not realized this fact before, and in consequence taken the necessary steps to do what they could to do the thing.

The whole question of the relation between the Mask and Wig Club and the University revolves itself into these points:

1. The Mask and Wig Club is a graduate organization founded originally upon a social basis, the object of whose members is to work for the University of Pennsylvania by securing and maintaining the interest of influental Philadelphia people and of others in the various cities visited by the Club. That its membership is made up of graduates and undergraduates, the Board of Governors consisting of seven graduates and five undergraduates.

2. That the Club cannot depend only upon undergraduates for its patronage because (1) their financial aid alone would not pay expenses; (2) in keeping the public away from the performances the main purpose of the Club would be defeated.

3. That to give undergraduates the first choice of seats would make it impossible for many of the very persons whom the Mask and Wig Club desires to interest in Pennsylvania to see the show.

4. That the undergraduates furnish all the talent for the performances, and apart from their personal interest in the cast and chorus, have a right as Pennsylvania undergraduates to consideration in securing seats.

5. That the Club has unsuccessfully sought a way to alter the necessity of standing in line and has labored under the impression that all Undergraduates who desired to see the show were able to get tickets from patrons or members of the cast and chorus, also believing that the patronage paid cash dividends to speculators to exchange coupons for them at the patronage sale. Instead of giving the said speculators as commissions a certain number of tickets.

6. That the Club appreciates the dissatisfaction of the undergraduates and is willing to find a way in which to improve both the ticket sale and the attitude of undergraduates.

Some dealers in clothing of a certain or uncertain sort are making a great hurrah over "their bargain sales."
