THE PENNSYLVANIAN

Thursday, October 1, 1908

In today's news columns we print details of the exhibition in the Houston Club of tennis won by Pennsylvania men in two widely different lines of endeavor—running and chess.

Little can be said in praise of Curtin's work that has not been heard many times over, and the bewildering array of caps and medals that he has won is ample testimony to the truth of even the most superlative words about him.

The chess trophy is one that is less familiar to students here, and its coming to Pennsylvania instead of to Columbus, where it has been held on its previous visits to this country, is due to the earnest work of the University Chess Club, which congratulates on the successful consummation of its efforts.

It is an interesting coincidence that both the chess trophy and many of Curtin's finest trophies were won in international competition against men of English colleges.

The improved form shown by our 'Trotty' football team yesterday was indeed gratifying. Should such progress be accomplished during the coming few weeks, we feel confident that our team will soon approach the winning calibre.

Our opponents were not as formidable as we expect to meet in the future, and, therefore, little comparison can be drawn. We can only say, keep the good work up.

One of the very best ways to further the success of a team is to give it the proper undergraduate support, not sometimes, but any time and all the time. Yesterday many of the student bodies ignored the presence of the cheer leaders. Of course the game was one of minor importance, but, nevertheless, the ladies are our girls, and it is up to us to yell and yell with all our energy whenever they call for a cheer.

Practice makes perfect. At some of the colleges cheering is practiced at every glee club while we get most of our training during the important games. Freshmen, learn the yells, learn the songs, and everybody lend support.
