At 7:15 o'clock in the Triangle. There will be speeches by the Coaches and Captain in the Intramural singing. Everyone should be there.

JUSTICE BREWER AT SERVICES

Noted Jurist Addresses Students on "Life from a Judicial Standpoint."

"Absolute justice is incapable of realization at the hands of man," said Justice Brewer, of the United States Supreme Court, in his address at the university services yesterday morning. Justice Brewer spoke on "Life from a Judicial Standpoint," and gave words expressing the keynote of his address.

"Life is a glass," he said opening.

"Some see it as a mirror, and they see in it only the reflection of themselves. To others it is transparent, and when they look through it, they see the world clearly, accurately."

No two men could be found who came into this glass and looked at the same thing. This morning to answer the question: "What do you think of himself?" Each answer was based upon the observations of the other years with whom he has spent the bench.

He then went on to develop the idea that the society, as a group of men, having set out to establish a perfect balance between the act and the result, and to the actor, hot that this ideal was really impossible. A man's ideals, he pointed out.

When he walked off to middilield, the ball was Pennsylvanias. Several players carried the ball to midfield. An exchange of kicks followed, the "Varsity" dyingly securing the ball on the forty-five yard line. Poor play places Massey over for the first touch down.

Hollenbeck failed on an easy goal. Hollenbeck kicked off to Mcllister, who carried the ball to the twenty-fouf yard line. Townsend blocked an onside kick and the ball was Pennsylvania's. Several players carried the ball to midfield. An exchange of kicks followed, the "Varsity" finally securing the ball on the forty-five yard line. Poor play places Massey over for the first touch down.

Hollenbeck failed on an easy goal. Hollenbeck kicked off to Mcllister, who fumbled the ball. Townend broke up a forward pass and an exchange of kicks ensued. Beginning on the fifty-five yard line, Townsend and Hollenbeck plunged through the end run, the last named scoring. Hollenbeck again failed on an easy field goal. Straight football for the rest of the game and Marks kicked for goal.

The second half was uneventful except for the short error to the enemy's seventy yard line. Phillips played well at fullback. The play was hasty in Burkett's mystery, which he possibly solved in the near future. No good needs of experienced men from Central Manual and Central High were reported, about where there is but little doubt but that a satisfactory crew may be found.

Botanical Society Meets

The Botanical Society of Pennsylvania held its first meeting of the college year at 5:30 o'clock, Environmental Club. The program consisted of "Some Botanical Results of Recent Travels in Europe," Dr. J. M. Citingfante; brief reviews of the summer's work, members of the university society, exhibitions and descrip-

A BOOK, "PHILADELPHIA."

We are pleased to note that Check Net of our Athletic Union books will give us admission to the historical drama, "Philadelphia," to be given on Franklin Field Thursday evening.

CHEERING AT GAMES

The Turner of last Saturday's football game demonstrates an improvement during the past week. This improvement was particularly noticeable in the first half.

Of course we forget that the same vim and dash which we realize so essential, was not demonstrated throughout the entire game. The spasmotic emotions of spirit must be toned into a continuous flow. This will surely be the case when we meet State College on Saturday, at least we hope so. The cheers being of proper ability and steadiness it has been maintained as in the past, and we consider that this year's play may enter the National Intercollegiate Oratorical League.

Students and Lodges Where

Once again, with an atmosphere temperate by respect, we take the liberty to make clear our Association's strong disapproval of the University's course in forbidding students at Pennsylvania a daily holiday during the celebration of Founder's Week.

Were the occasion of less universal importance than it is, or were the University's connection with it not marked, we should be the last to express dissatisfaction with the disposition that has been granted; but at such a time as this, when a mentality that is second to none in America in its wealth of historic tradition is setting aside a week for the commemoration of its founding and its noble past, when citizens and organizations of every character are willing with each other to hundreds of ways to show their patriotism and love of city, and even the very liberals exclaim their zeal to look on and uphold, at such a time, for an institution whose historic, progressive and well-being are intimately bound up with those of Philadelphia to go on in its daily routine with a fine disregard for all that is taking place outside. Its walls, we consider so desecrately mistaken a policy as not to be excused on grounds of expediency alone.

Nor can it be argued that by having these or four members of its Faculty sharing the preparations for this great event the University has done its whole duty by its history. The thorough students who come to it for instruction and inspiration are no more to be considered representatives of the University as, for instance, a learned, treasured by the most credit of its professors, and it is through them that the University can best take full recognition of this event.

This is another ground on which it seems only fair to grant more holiday to the students, and that is personal interest in the old scenes. Last year of 4,000 men at Pennsylvania over 2,000, or almost 50 per cent, were the State of Pennsylvania and most of these came from Philadelphia. Does it not seem unjust to this overwhelming majority of Philadelphians that they will not be permitted to view and enjoy the spectacles of the whole week while their younger brothers in the public schools will not be restricted?

We repeat then that we believe it fair for these students to be excused from classes every afternoon of this week and that it is not too late for the University to reconsider in its opinion, to take a line in it at once.

Informal Meeting of Cercle Francais

At an informal meeting of the members of the Cercle Francais, held on Friday night, plans for the year were discussed. The first meeting of the Cercle will be held in the Houlton Club on October 15th. This will be an open meeting, and will be in the form of a reception to old and prospective members. It is expected that many will avail themselves of the opportunity to learn conversational French from the most elementary standpoint and join at this time. Each year a play is presented entirely in French, last year's play being "La Princesse aux Foins," by Robertson. Conversational classes will be maintained as in the past year, and the Alliance Francaise Scholarship and Prize Medal will be awarded at the discretion of the Cercle. Among other celebratedhens who last year spoke here under the auspices of the Cercle was Professor C. L. K. Moulin, madeleine of the Sorbonne, Paris. A short business meeting will be held before the reading.

Call for Glee Club Candidates

Candidates for the Glee Club will report tonight at Houston Hall at eight o'clock, sharp. This will be the last tryout for new candidates this year. New men who have already had their trial need not report unless they think that they can better their record. This year there is an exceptional chance for men with good voices in Messrs. William T. Conley, Leader; and C. E. Sawyer, Conductor.

Intercollegiate Oratorical League

Pennsylvania may enter the National Intercollegiate Oratorical League this winter. Negotiations are now under way looking toward the formation of a gigantic oratorical association, which would include Harvard, Virginia, Yale, Stanford, Princeton, Columbia, Cornell, Johns Hopkins, George Washington, and Pennsylvania.
