Pittsburgh Alumni Meet.

The new location of the East Strahan Company, will take place.

If Pennsylvania is to maintain its gle Stalin track work some very new material will have to be developed this year, as there are only two of last year's point winners in the University cross country meet, in which the east was the best of the distance men competing today, the three-mile run will probably be postponed a week.

The entire season's schedule of a few additions, which will not be announced until this afternoon, are the same as were announced in yesterday's Pennsylvania.

In these annual events the track management very often discovers men who, with careful training and supervision, become future Red and Blue stars in their respective events.

Basketball News.

Manager John K. Lee, of the basketball team, reports that the prospects of this year's team are very bright. The men of last year's "Varsity excepting Fite-nich, H. P. K., and Dr. Hochelle" are back and will report at the first practice, which will be held towards the end of November. Keinath, quarter-back on the Varsity football team, has been \ dissatisfied, and Dr. Fifer will coach the team. The season is already complicated, and as it receives the consent of the Faculty will be given out for initiation.

Prize Examination in Mathematics.

The examination in Mathematics was offered by the Class of 80 for the best stated that up to the present no entry had been received for the examination.

Lyric—Next Week the Last Opportunity to Witness David Belasco's "The Warrens of Virginia"

Next week, beginning Monday, November 25, will affect theatregoers of Philadelphia and the vicinity the last opportunity they will have of witnessing at the Lyric Theatre "The Warrens of Virginia," David Belasco's sensational and successful production of William C. De Kittle's play of Civil War days. There will be the regular Thursday evening and Saturday afternoon performances and, in addition, a special matinee on Tuesday (Thursday matinees). "The Warrens of Virginia" was given its "first performance on any stage" in Philadelphia last season and local theatregoers took it to their hearts immediately. Its return has been welcomed with such an unusual amount of cordiality that there have been few performances from which it has not been necessary to turn people away, simply because of lack of room to accommodate them. It appears that not only all of those who reviewed the offering when it was here last season returned for a second sight, but with them came hundreds who had, unfortunately, found no earlier opportunity of being among those present. Box office indications are that this second read, last week's engagement will be characterized by a series of audiences as large and as socially brilliant as those which have made the past week's engagements momentous.

As a production "The Warrens of Virginia" is typically Belascoan. In points of impressive beauty, historical and geographical accuracy the background he has given this story of the days of '65 rakes with anything he has done in the past. As the majesty of the performances retains vital recollections of the gorgeousness of "De Bary," "Adams," "The Drifting of the Gods," and others which have borne the laurels of the past, new and more detailed description of the investiture of 'The Warrens of Virginia' is necessary for them to realize its unusual attractiveness.

Its interpretation by the excellently efficient company led by Frank Keenan and Charlotta Walker is a performance of such strength that the most conservative critics have admitted the organisation's right to be called an "all star" cast.
