GRAND OPERA.
The Pennsylvania gives on the first page of this morning's issue the final details to be complied with in order that the students may take advantage of Mr. Hammerstein's offer to see
grand opera.
The Pennsylvania through its commitee labored for weeks preceding the holidays arranging the details of this opera scheme with Mr. Hammerstein's managers and succeeded by much hard work in getting the attractive offer which has brought grand opera within the reach of the majority of students at the University.
The response to the offer which we made public in our column was tremendous,
over one thousand presenting themselves for reduction cards on the Friday before the holidays. Mr. Hammerstein, not expecting such a response, finds himself unable to accommodate such a number, and has asked us to discriminate in some way in order that he may be protected.
His managers, together with the University authorities, feel that as The Pennsylvania has worked out the scheme and since it has worked so hard in making it possible for the students to enjoy the privilege, the discrimination should be made in favor of its subscribers. They feel also that The Pennsylvania is necessary to those who wish to take advantage of this offer, as matters regarding the scheme are being constantly changed, and the information can only be got through its columns. We have found it a physical impossibility to arrange this matter and publish the information necessary to take advantage of the scheme and then be called upon to explain all the details to the hundreds who are not subscribers to the paper and who are consequently ignorant as to the requirements. We are certain that all fulfilled students in the University feel that The Pennsylvania is a necessity if they are to take advantage of Mr. Hammerstein's offer intelligently and will see the sanity of the restriction made.

Christmas in the Hospital.
The patients in the University Hospital were generously provided with good cheer on Christmas Day. Not only were they furnished with a splendid turkey dinner, but each one also received a gift of his or her own choosing. About two weeks before Christmas a list was made up of that article which each inmate had named as most desirable for themselves, and on Christmas day those articles were distributed to the patients.

fessor of Semitic Languages and Li-

Washington is overworked," says Pro-ets for the benefit next week will re-

ADVISORY BOARD.
The Editor-in-Chief takes pleasure in appointing as an advisory editorial board Frederick L. Ballard, Everett H. Brown, Jr., and Predicke W. Broding, all of the Class of '09.

THE PENNSYLVANIAN feels that it should be the field of its editorial work, and to do this assistance is needed from men of ability and standing in the University, who take an active part in undergraduate activities and are in touch with the different phases of University life. The three men we have just appointed to the above board meet these requirements in every particular, and with their aid we feel our editorial columns will become more of a factor in representing and shaping undergraduate sentiment, and by branching out into broader fields make this most important part of THE PENNSYLVANIAN worth your reading.

PENN-SYLVANIAN ELECTIONS.
At the next regular meeting of the PENNSYLVANIAN board the managing department will propose for nomination the names of those candidates who have been doing faithful work during the year and who in its estimation have fulfilled the necessary qualifications for their names to be presented for election. There are of course only a few vacancies on the board to be filled. It goes without saying that not all the candidates will be elected, but we hope to see those who are not elected, but who are earnest in their desire to make the board, still keep up their work. If they are not made the right sort of stuff they will make good and be taken on the board at the next election. The positions on the board will be based on ability and merit alone. We desire men of this type who have the right sort of Pennsylvania spirit and who are not afraid to work, as we believe if THE PENNSYLVANIAN is to occupy the position it should in the University, its board must be composed of this type of men.

Architectural Play.
The Architectural Society's annual play this year has brighter prospects than ever for being a distinct dramatic success. The libretto, which is entitled "The Travelling Scholarship," is in writing by Herbert Schmidt, '09 Artst, and the music is by Horace Hokinson, '09 Arc. The play is in three acts, the scene being laid in Venice and the surrounding country. The play will be given about the last week in February in the "Grun Street Theatre" at the southeast corner of the "Big Quad." The contest for the poster advertising the play will be held the first week in February, to which a large number of architects are expected to contribute.

Zeological Society's Play.
The second annual play of the Zoological Library Society, Mansehol's "New Way to Pay Old Debts," will be given in the New Century Drawing Room on Friday, January 15th. This is an old English play, which was the choice of the Zeological Society last year, but as arrangements had already been made to produce it at Princeton, the Society chooses "She Would and She Would Not." The production this year will be staged with a large and efficient cast.

Rowing at Princeton.
Princetone men have been working so strongly to rowing that one set of rowing machines has already been set up, and a regular rowing tank will probably be built in the gymnasium sometime this winter. It is expected that fully one hundred candidates will register for the indoor training on the machines when the call is issued on February 1st.

Frazier Prize Debates.
Next Monday the Frazier Prize Debates will be held in Prize Hall. Those who speak in this contest will represent Pennsylvania in the Triangular League debates next month. The following have been chosen to act as judges: City Solicitor Goddell, H. R. P. Nichols, Esq., and Professor Allen J. Smith.

French Committee.
President Brown has appointed the following men as a committee in charge of the French play: Robert Toy, Hastings, Bryant, Chappa, Day, Strassburger, Hich, and R. L. Landle, Chairman. The committee will meet in Room 217, College Hall, tomorrow afternoon at one o'clock.

Hughes' Good Record.
It is an interesting fact that W. H. Hughes, '09 C., the chess expert, who won all his games in the last Rice Trophy champion match, during four weeks of play in this tournament has won eleven games, lost three and drawn two.

Kelvin Physical Club.
The Kelvin Physical Club meets at the afternoon in the Randall Morgan Laboratory at four o'clock. Addresses on electricity and magnetism will be made by Dr. Hough, Messrs. Harper, Weinrich and Kaspel.
