SECOND-YEAR MEN GIVE DANCE.

Brilliant Social Function Held Last Evening Gymnasium—Over Two Hundred Guests Present.

One of the most successful Sophomore Dances ever held was given by the Junior Class of the Pennsylvania Hall. It was very unique, containing many modern ideas and presenting previous dances given by the Sophomores.

The hall was most beautifully decorated. Green and Red was the color ruling in the design of the drapery all around the sides of the ball while in the central Red and Blue was supplemented from overhead. Flowers and plants in professor decoration covered the walls. The ballroom itself was in a magnificent style. Large pillars on all sides surrounded by lattice work, beautifully adorned and illuminated with Red and Blue light added to the splendor of the decorations. The entire ballroom was the work of the professor of architecture. In all this a great deal of the decorations were the invention of the programmers. In the south court were raised and hidden amidst a cluster of flowers. Above these were the letters "lill" in red lights, and during the two of the dances all lights were extinguished except these, which appeared and disappeared with the music, giving a most magnificent effect.

The program was very unique. It had a central color scheme, which bore the University seal, and attached to it were long cords of the same color. There were twenty-four different dances, comprising alternating wallaces and walnuts, as well as pumpkins and four extra one for each of these. At halfpast eleven an elaborate singer was served in the north court, the hall being decorated with Red and Blue, was reserved for the music, giving a most magnificent effect.

The committee in charge, and those who selected the dances for the fine work to make the dance such a great success. The in charge was: Benjamin Cooke, E. Osborne Cates, E. Sagetone Large, Harold M. Wood, George H. Cook, Charles T. Thompson, U. G. Favorit, Edward F. Capurso, Robert B. Hull, Henry P. Halmann, Rolland Mitchell Wagner, John H. Couch, Bruce Wallman, Henry W. Jackson, William A. Powell, Alonzo Bouton, J. Hutchinson, Ruehle, W. H. E. Weil, John A. Peales, William Steede, Charles W. Medlin, the president; W. L. Irwin, Henry S. Musser, Chairman of the committee, and E. D. Williams, Jr., Chairman.

CLEAN LIVING.
Once upon a time there arose among several wise men the great question, "Is life worth living?" To which one of them answered, "It depends entirely upon the user." This has of course come down to us as a pun, but it is often the true saying that is spoken in jest. If the student of a college type were to reflect how closely the body is associated with the mind, and vice versa, they would see how necessary it is to exercise each equally and not allow one to develop at the expense of the other.

Too often the so-called "blue" or mental depression is really not a state of mind, but merely a condition which must arise when the body has been mistreated. Just glance back and make note of what irregularly or excess you have been indulging in. It may be merely a case of not enough sleep or over-eating, yet, as soon as the body has recovered from the strain, the mind will again set itself right without any further aid. The calms of the work turned out by the mind is directly proportional to the condition of the body.

We know the "pared," and we also know too well the cartooned type of the college athlete. Neither type appeals to us, and the nearer we come to the happy medium, the well-balanced man, the nearer we approach our ideal. Yet continually the balance is pointing toward one existence and then the other. Compulsory gymnastics and required exercises are odious to the student. The reason seems to be in the fact that the students cannot or will not see any other side than the objectionable in these matters.

All men need exercise—this is obvious—but one would wish to judge from the attitude of some of the men around college. Exercise does not mean a violent indulgence in some major sport. A man is only expected to give his muscle in this direction. Judging, however, from appearance, the taking of a daily bath seems to be too much of a physical strain for some men. The matter of cleanliness is a serious one. Why will some men not take a little pride in their personal appearance? It is only carelessness or thoughtlessness with a great many men, yet by doing so they reflect upon Pennsylvania as well as upon themselves. We are not asking the men to dress expensively, for that would be a hardship and does not necessarily denote good taste. We are not asking the men to be "sporty" or wear the so-called upscale college clothes. We are not advocates of the "three-button varsity coat" or the "two-buckle campus last shoe for college men" by any means. But there certainly is no excuse today for a man not to appear clean. In most cases it would only be a matter of shorn becks and a change of linen. Grave mistakes are often made when eccentricity of dress is mistaken as an indication of individuality of character.

BASEBALL, COACH.
A new departure has been made in the baseball coaching system at Pennsylvania. For years we have advanced steadily and surely in almost every line of sport except baseball, and in this we have not gained much headway. Much criticism has been current that our coaching system has been wrong. It is thought that while the graduate coaching system is the best for football, it is not applicable to baseball for many reasons. Baseball is an art known in all its minutest details by few outside the professional ranks. This is an admitted fact, and it is one of greatest arguments in favor of the professional coach in college baseball. Football is not a professional game, while baseball is decidedly the great professional game. It is only natural then to hope for the best coaches in baseball among the professional players. The difficulty has been to get the man of the right type.

The Committee on deciding as to the change of the coaching system has acted for what they believe are the best interests of Pennsylvania. They feel that a change is needed in the coaching system and have made one. They have been fortunate indeed in being able to secure for this season's coach Roy A. Thomas, '94 C, of the Pittsburgh National League team. In securing him the committee has activated a professional who is recognized as one of the best players in the National League and who is at the same time a Pennsylvania graduate. We now have the first requisite for any coaching team, namely, a good coach. The call for candidates will be issued shortly. The success of the team depends upon the loyalty of the under-graduates.
