"The years of trial and privation, the scenes of the Constitution, the charter of the association with the American spirit, the spirit of the life which is most often the true character of the American, and the young spirit which is the spirit of the American citizen, is the spirit of the nation which is the spirit of the world. PHILADELPHIA ORCHESTRA.

This evening marks the initial appearance of the Philadelphia Orchestra at Pennsylvania. The occasion is one of supreme importance, for a new epoch is opened in the musical education of the students of this University. We are highly elated that this opportunity is granted the undergraduates, and we have no hesitancy in proclaiming it a tremendous success for the concert.

It is a pleasure to announce that the sale of seats has proved most gratifying. It is our sincere wish that there may not be a single unsold seat. The gala evening demands attention. A program of home interest and of all time will be presented, the event being the formal opening of the University's own orchestra.

Basketball Teams Win.

Pennsylvania defeated Colgate's basketball team last night by the score of 27 to 23 in a game pregnant with interest and excitement. Toward the end of the first half Colgate began to show excellent form and when the gong rang the score stood 10 to 9 in her favor. The tables were turned in the second half, however, when the Red and Blue quintette, urged on by the cheers of the student body, took the lead and maintained it throughout the remainder of the game.

Kleiber and Kelnam played most brilliantly, the latter scoring seven goals from fous in addition to four field goal. Leeber was Colgate's best man, being starting as the full back. The line up:

Colgate: Field goals—Greene, 3; Marks, 3, Kelnath, 2. Goals from fouls—Shepardson, 1.

Pennsylvania: Field goals—Kleiber, 4; Marks, 1; McIntosh, 2. Field goals from fouls—Kelnath, 2. In a hard fought game the Pennsylvania basketball team decisively defeated the Central Manual Training High School five by the score of 34 to 16. Reedy starred for the Freshmen while Pyne with McQuade excelled for Manual. Fouls were rare, but the 1912 team was the chief offender in this respect. The line up:

Central Manual—Field goals—Pyne, 3; Goodwin. Goals from fouls—Goodwin, 4; Referee, 1.

Championship.

Pennsylvania will be represented in the Intercollegiate Indoor Rifle Championship, to be held among the Eastern colleges within a month. This is the decision at which the Rifle Club arrived at a meeting held in College Hall yesterday. A team of ten men will be entered, who will shoot at one of the Philadelphia indoor ranges under the supervision of a representative of the Intercollegiate Rifle Association. Each man will fire ten shots at a one-inch bull's eye at a distance of fifty feet. Twenty-two caliber rifles of any make will be used. A similar arrangement has been made with the other colleges, so that the match will be held simultaneously in different places, thus avoiding the necessity of travel. The winning team will receive individual medals and a team trophy a handsome plaque, which was last year won by Columbia.

The Rifle Club picture will be taken in Weightman Hall at 1:30 this afternoon.

Dr. Smith Improving Rapidly.

Dr. Smith, who has been incapacitated for some weeks, is now greatly improved. According to Dr. De Schweinitz and Dr. Olliver, the ophthalmologist, Dr. Smith is in attendance. He is much improved and his eyes are out of danger. This is the most promising report thus far, and it is expected that he will be able to resume his duties in the near future.

One of the most frequent accusations brought against the medical profession today is that it is liberal, opposed to progress, an adherent of any doctrine that is not in harmony with the prevailing fashion of medical thought. In view of the revolution- ary changes that have taken place in the last thirty years in the medical field, in the last thirty years in the medical field, it is absurd to claim that the profession is opposed to progress, or that the profession is not in harmony with the prevailing fashion of medical thought. It is absurd to claim that the profession is opposed to progress, or that the profession is not in harmony with the prevailing fashion of medical thought.

ADDRESS BY DEAN PENNIMAN.
human race. It is not matter, but men that control the world, and it is ideas and ideals that control men.
"In moments when the ideals of the highest revelation seem in danger of being lowered to a mere utilitarianism, we are apt to feel unhappy because pure literature, pure science, pure art are for the time thrust aside in the hurly-burly of our work, to young men to acquire immediately a profession. We must remember that the swing of the pendulum is not always in one direction; we must remember too that the influence of the great ideas we value so highly and of great personalities is not lost when not apparent. Often, when has expected, the influences we have thought impotent are most potent. Universities can influence towards the high. It sometimes apparently only a portion of their students.
"The knowledge of higher intellectual and spiritual life is the greatest result of education. Contact with the great minds of the race as shown by their arts revealed in history and as revealed in their writings is one appointed means of growth. The use of our powers is the other.
"On this birthday of Washington and in this month in which we have celebrated the centennial of the birth of Lincoln and with peculiar Strauss, say that the ideals of democracy can be realized only through liberal education, whether derived from men or books. Not what a man is but what he may become by the right use of opportunities freely open to him in every gift, is the thought underlying our national life.
