PHILO PLAY A GREAT SUCCESS

"Two Angry Women of Abington" Presented Before Large Audiences in Botanical Gardens Yesterday.

The first performance of the Philo Society's play, "Two Angry Women of Abington," was given in the Botanical Gardens yesterday afternoon, before an enthusiastic audience of about one hundred and fifty people. If strong applause is any indication of satisfaction, the audience was highly pleased, as the clapping was almost continuous. The audience in the evening was likewise large, and the production was well received. The play is in the infinite period from the pen of Henry Porter, and was written and first presented in 1859.

FACULTY PRAISES 1909 RECORD

Appreciations Received from Prominent Professors—All Are Pleased.

Unanimous praise has been bestowed by the Faculty upon the 1909 Class Record since its appearance last night.

Dean Penniman in a letter to the Record carefully, and I think it is one of the best the class has ever had been tried. The printing and illustrations are excellent, and the general artistic make up of the book is all that could be desired. The Committee deserves great credit for this excellent form, but as yet has not shown such speed as will be necessary in these words: "The Class Record is the best it has ever been; the work is in excellent order and the fine.."

PREPARING FOR POUNGKEEPSE

"Varsity Rowing Over Long Course. Second Boat to Be Dazzled".

With but little over a month to train for the Pougkeepsie Regatta, Coach Willard will begin to give all of his crews some hard practice. This year's "Varsity has a slight advantage over that last year that it has been training for four miles, the Pougkeepsie distance, ever since the Van Cortland Field meet, while last year the "Varsity did not put in any hard work for the Poughkeepsie Regatta until after their race in the American Henley. At present the "Varsity is rowing in excellent condition and is ready for any team..." (Continued on Second Page.)

DUTIES OF THE BOARD.

Though the college year is almost at an end, we publish a brief of the duties assumed by each member of the board, in order that suggestions and complaints in regard to The Pennsylvania may be addressed to the proper members of the board and so that the inquiries which are continually coming to the office as to who edits the articles that appear in our columns may be answered.

A general supervision of the editorial office is maintained by the Editor-in-Chief, who writes or supervises in the writing of all matter that appears in the editorial column, and is personally responsible for the sentiment there expressed. Communications for publication should be addressed to him. The Managing Editor, to whom requests for special articles should be made, has charge of the news section and superintends the work of the Editors and Associate Editors subject to the approval of the Editor-in-Chief. The Assistant Managing Editor assigns the routine to be covered each day by the reporters. The duties of the Editors are to edit and supervise the publication of the paper on the days on which

Keith's Theatre.

It is a splendid bill that is the Keith offering for the week of May 24th, diverse in attractions and full of soap and brilliancy from beginning to end. The leading feature of the bill is positively the most sensational and highest saluted attraction of modern vaudeville, Miss Kellermann, the Australian Amphirole. As the world knows, Miss Kellermann has recently been one of the most discussed women of the modern stage, and whenever she has appeared she has been accorded a colossal reception. Miss Kellermann is cut into three parts. The first exemplifies her skill in the French game of Duble; the second, her accomplishments as a Terrapin clown act; and the third, most important of all, her wonderful skill as a diver and aquatic wonder. Miss Kellermann has been pronounced by the foremost experts of art and physical culture in this country the possessor of the most perfect figure of any woman in the world. No less an authority than Professor Sergeant, of Harvard University, proclaims Miss Kellermann the modern Venus De Milo. But aside from her personal charms, her act is one of the most interesting ever seen upon any stage. In illustrating the half dozen styles of diving Miss Kellermann requires an enormous tank especially built to suit her requirements. This has been installed in the theatre at great expense.

Penn's Exhibition at Exposition.

Two carloads of material for the University of Pennsylvania exhibit at the Atlantic Co-operative Exposition left for Seattle last week and a third carload will follow shortly. The Franklin case and reproductions of the paintings of the Proverbs, together with models and photographs of past and present University buildings, will form the historical part of the exhibit. Student life will be shown in a collection of nearly six hundred photographs, to be placed in a revolving case in the centre.

Notice to Seniors.

You will receive a copy of your Class Record more highly as the year comes to an end. The School will call to mind more vividly your undergraduate days. What that means can only be appreciated by the added years which mean added value. There are many graduates of this University who would not part with their Class Records for any amount of money.

All students who desire to take meals at Virginia's next year should kindly send their names to P. C. H., Room 135, Filker, immediately. The supply of old tables and chairs as well as new. Price for table boxed will be $6.50 per week.

Solicitors Wanted.

The General Alumni Society wishes to hire a Senior to select subscriptions to the Senior Class from the present Senior Class in Whitson School and Arts Department. Call at the office, 3451 Woodland avenue.
