The Chinese Students Club of the University will hold its first meeting of the autumn term next Monday. Officers for the first term were elected by the members present.

Organizing for its second year, the Chinese Students Club of the University will hold its first meeting of the autumn term next Monday. Officers for the first term were elected by the members present.

Will the time of offering the economic and industrial problems of today, this country, and other nations? The club was organized last year by a small group of Chinese students. Although only in the second year of its life, it is already making remarkable growth in many lines of activity. It is planned to be a strong club and is now placed on a sound foundation.

Representatives of professors in economics and political science, including Professors T. V. Yang, Professor T. Y. Wu, and Dr. Young, at the University were invited to give formal and confidential talks to the members of the club.

With the intention of fostering this course and of broadening the scope of this club, a most excellent and greatest interest of the members, it is intended to make the club a permanent institution, aiming to become an institution for the future economic development of China.
