But a few weeks after the twentieth birthday of the classmate, J. Allison Scott, died at Northeast Harbor, Maine, after a lingering illness of several months duration. Note had worked harder than he for the benefit of the football team and the athletics. It was a bitter disappointment to those who watched him. It was as much as we could do to keep the spirit of the team alive in the absence of the third Tuesday game of the season. The team had not been formed for the spring season, but for the fall season. The news of the death of Carlisle, who was beloved by all who knew him, is the second game in the season. The final result of the 29-0 score, in which the players worked to make the play run off smoothly, is a bitter disappointment to those who watched the game. The afternoon, with the exception of the third, was relatively quiet. The result was the result of the 29-0 score, which was unexpected; the exception that the final result of the 29-0 score, which was unexpected, is the result of the 29-0 score, which was unexpected.
We wish to thank all men who came forward with songs this season. The success of the pardoes at the matinee meetings and at the last two scenes, however, is being thanks than we can give. Those men whose songs were received a too late an hour to be used should take some of the appreciation accorded the earlier works to themselves.

Performances that intend to subscribe for boxes at the opera are asked to communicate at once, in writing, with the chairman of the Opera Committee. There will be four boxes, seating five each, at $60 a box, and two boxes, seating six each, at $100. This will mean seats at the reduced rate every Saturday night during the season of twenty weeks, and complete possession of a box with its privileges. By Wednesday noon the opera management must have all applications.

Some days ago, The Pennsylvania put the question: "What has become of the Fries Club?" At that time the song was made that not a little work of real importance awaited the reconstruction of that organization.

Conditions have come to light since the question was put and the suggestion made that can only be dealt with by the club.

Again we ask: Where is the Press Club?

For some time The Pennsylvania has been wondering what has become of the State, School, and Sectional Clubs. Up to this year, there have always taken such an active part in the work of the University. Perhaps they are in quiet operation, but they do not seem to be so. If they are asleep, an awakening would not be out of place.

Dr. Wood leads services.

Dr. Horatio C. Wood, Jr., of the Medical Department, began his week of leadership of Chapel exercises this morning. He said, in part:

"This teaches the faculty of all human ambitions. A man who has recently died who probably controlled more railroad mileage than any other man in the world. His life work was of stupendous proportions, and his power was far-reaching. During his funeral all the railroads and men who was at one time king were silent for thirty seconds. With this one brief soliloquy, traffic came once more, and its past monarch was forgotten.

"Compare such a life with that of a man who served his Master. Bond to mind Paul, who carried no sword, who had no money, but who changed the political map of the world, to stay asleep.

"Which life is the fuller, which life the more satisfying; the life for self, or the life for God?"

RARE BEQUEST TO LIBRARY

Product of His Life's Activities in Historical Research Donated by Henry Carey Lea.

By the probate of the will of the late Henry Carey Lea, historian and publisher, probably the most valuable volumes ever written on historical research work came into the possession of the University of Pennsylvania Library yesterday. The collection, treating chiefly of medieval ecclesiastical history, is by far the finest in this country, and includes an unusually large number of manuscripts. Mr. Lea died on October 21st, leaving an estate that is estimated will amount to a million or more. To each child of the deceased were bequeathed several books, and it is selected by each, the remainder to be donated to the University Library and to the Library of Philadelphia, the latter, however, receiving but the duplicate volumes. Referring to his library collection, Mr. Lea's will reads as follows: "If during my wife's lifetime, it shall be her wish, or if, at any time thereafter, it shall be the wish of the owner of the house in which I now dwell that the books and manuscripts shall be removed in whole or in part, then it is my will that each of my children shall select such books as they may desire to possess and shall make an equitable division thereof among themselves. "The remainder not thus taken by my children shall be given to the Library of the University of Pennsylvania upon the condition that the same shall be kept together as a whole, and that any duplicate books of books already in the Library of the University of Pennsylvania shall be given to the Philadelphia Library."

At noon, yesterday, an unexpected fight took place on the College Campus. The Sophomores had pasted two large posters on the rear door of College Hall, and a number of Freshmen attempted to tear them down. A crowd of underclassmen soon appeared, and for an hour the fight was on. It was the roughest mixup the classes had indulged in this year. Upstairs the fire alarm was pressed and stopped the bout, but the Freshmen had torn down about half of a poster.

G. A. R. FIRES FIRST GUN

Dormitory Resident Objects to Use of "Big Gun" for Class Fights.

(The Pennsylvania welcomes communications, but is not responsible for the sentiment expressed.)

To the Editor of the Pennsylvania:

I understand that it is planned to have the coming push-ball fight between the Freshmen and Sophomore classes, to take place in the "Big Gun." It seems to me that this is a big mistake.

The "Big Gun" is one of the things that more far towards making the Dormitory surroundings attractive, not only to the occupants themselves, but to visitors. After four or five hundred men have shouted and pushed back and forth for the two halves of the field, however, even such will not be the case. The ground torn up and disfigured, will be an eyesore until next spring.

With weather conditions as we have in Philadelphia, the grass remains green until late in the season, and even when it turns brown, the unknown ground of the field gives a wet and slippery appearance to the place. It seems a pity to disfigure it when the fight could be held just as well on Franklin Field.

Yours truly,
G. A. R.
