After a thorough inspection of Pennsylvania's work and equipment, the sixteen members of the General Committee of the General Alumni who visited yesterday expressed themselves as highly pleased with the businesslike atmosphere they found throughout the institution.

Each department was visited first by way of a report, and then almost immediately after a much longer statement of the general condition, the poaching problems arose. As they've done in past years they expressed themselves as highly pleased with the businesslike atmosphere they found throughout the institution.

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 6, 1909.

Tickets for Monday night’s concert by the Philadelphia Orchestra in Weidman Hall continue to sell all too slow! This is a case of affairs. The Pennsylvania does not anticipate, nor does The Pennsylvanian, relish any prospect of failure for this first concert.

When the tremendous success of the two concerts of last winter is recalled, it is difficult to find an explanation in the slightest degree satisfactory for the lack of enthusiasm with which the Orchestra plans have been greeted.

There is little to say other than that the undergraduates are not awake to the opportunity offered them. It is hoped that they will experience an awakening before the concert begins on Monday evening.

Chapel Attendance.

Wednesday, 102
Thursday, 125
Friday, 138

Here is a new attendance record. It breaks last Friday’s figures by a trifle over twenty. Registration is over the five thousand mark. Is it too much to hope for a Chapel turn-out of three hundred some day soon?

Members of both the Sophomore and Freshmen classes are to be congratulated in regard to yesterday’s fight; both classes were on hand in goodly numbers; 1912 gained its initial triumph in an official underclass fight. The struggle was satisfactory. It was, however, the opinion of many spectators that an additional half would be a decided improvement. All comment as to the advantages given either side by the wind would be inappropriate, with this change, he done away with. This may be regarded as a suggestion by which future Penn Ball fights may be improved.

Only one more official fight remains on this year’s schedule. The Battle of the Boves takes place during Junior Week, and Junior Week is near at hand. It is always safe to prophecy success for the Bowl Fight.

MEMORIAL TO DR. F. K. HUGER

Presentation Exercises at 2 O'clock in Medical Laboratories—Dr. White and Dr. Spangler Speak.

Yesterday, at 2.30 P. M., in the New Medical Laboratories, a memorial masonic service was held to commemorate the daring attempt to rescue the Marquis de Lafayette from the fortress of Orléans by Andrew Sinker Huger, of the Class of 1797, Medical student, to the University. The occasion calls for further interest than that the sculptor is Professor W. Weir McAllister, of our own faculty, and the donor is Mr. Joseph A. Dorsey, of the Class of 1841, whose father graduated in 1839, and whose two sons have recently been here as undergraduates. The presentation address was made by Professor T. William White, and the memorial was accepted on behalf of the University by Dr. Wharton Shafter.

Dr. Huger was born in Charleston, S. C., September, 1772. After receiving a suitable education in England, he went to Vienna for the study of medicine, and there met Dr. Eide Bollman, who introduced him to a plan to liberate Lafayette from the fortress of Orléans, in France. Through making acquaintance with the surgeon of the fortress he was enabled to lend French books to the prisoner and to indicate invisible writing. By this means of communication the plot for the rescue was perfected. While out riding with two guards, Lafayette alighted and gradually drew the officer in charge from the high road. Rapidly he grabbed the grip of the officer's sword and the two friends galloped to his assistance. However, through a misunderstanding, all three were shortly afterwards captured and imprisoned in the fortress, but Dr. Huger and Dr. Bollman were released after being chained in darkness to the door of their cell for eight months. Dr. Huger returned to the United States, entering the Medical Department of the University to complete his medical education, and was graduated in 1797. He served as colonel in the war of 1812, and died in Charleston in February, 1865, in his eighty-second year.

On the medal is the head of Dr. Huger, with the dates of his birth and death on either side. Directly underneath are engraved the words:

"To commemorate the daring attempt to rescue the Marquis De Lafayette from the fortress of Orléans by Francis Klock Huger, of the Class of 1797.

The face is that of a man of great intellect and fine ideals, with its broad, smooth forehead, deep-set, thoughtful eyes, firm mouth and determined and purposeful chin. Dr. Sinker, in closing his address of acceptance said: 'It is quite fitting that this memorial be placed here as a recognition of a high-spirited and chivalrous man, and as an example and inspiration to other sons of Pennsylvania, who, in succeeding generations, will look upon this memorial.'

The presence of the great granddaughter of Dr. Huger, who came a long way to unveil the medallion addressed the students in the University, and greatly to the significance of the occasion.

Wireless Club Active.

The Wireless Club expects to install a two-hundred-watt station in Houston Hall, which will be capable of receiving any message sent within a radius of a thousand miles. Already $116 has been subscribed, and after the station is in operation it is hoped that several local business men will help support the project. At the meeting of the club to be held November 11, in Room 2, Houston Hall, at 7:30 P. M., reports from the Committee on Instruments, Roster and Construction will be read, permanent officer elected and a constitution adopted.

Mandolin Club to Assist in Play.

The Pennsylvania Mandolin Club is to assist in a comedy on the subject "Under the Aegean," which is to be given by the students of the Dental College, on Friday evening, December 19th, in the Ball Room of the Bellevue-Stratford. The performance is for the benefit of the Children's Seashore Home. Tickets may be obtained for $1.50 each at the Dental College, Pine street, above Broad.
