PHILADELPHIA, TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 6

Lecture Recital on Popular Verdi Opera to Be Given in Free Public Room in Houston Hall.

No music is more popular with the large names of opera-goers, who look for melody and not for tunes, than the ever-popular Verdi. Thursday night, Dr. Kynett, Jr., half a dozen of the operas he wrote be- tween "Aida" have been selected, and of these, opera house revere- ness could financially withstand even today without at least two or three of them on the bill. It is signif- icant that only last Thursday a monumen- tal Verdi was unveiled in Fair-Field Park at a cost of the people of Philadelphia to his memory.

Perhaps the best known of the popu- lar Verdi operas is "Il Trovatore," a work of mouldless one can never forget, which has become so popular- ity as a result of the immense impresario, nobly spoken and hurried-

The concert will be in the Union Hall.

A moving of the committee is charge of the University Settlement has been called for this afternoon at 2 o'clock. The purpose of the meeting is to consider the settlement's financial condition.

It requires about $1,000 a month in the House of University, erected for the purpose of enabling the Uni- versity students to mingle in friendly relations with the people of the neighbor- hood, that the students and the people may get from each what the other needs. There are some seventy-five, different departments of the settlement, and an effort is made all along the line.

The last letter your council at Com- munion, this being the last time in the history of the House, free of debt. The work was started, as noted earlier, at the university, at University Farm and at the University Hospital last summer when the work was first called. It was necessary to raise money, and it was largely done. It was not difficult to raise funds to meet the obligations of the present time it is now in need of about $2,000. Should this continue it will necessitate cutting down the activities of the settlements.

The committee claimed that the student must not be idle, and that there has been an attempt to the lecture bureau and to literary work, during which period he has written many papers and has served as editor of Harper's Magazine and the Christian Union.

With the unanimous vote of the house body, the boxers are to meet at six meeting held last evening in Houston Hall. The bouts were elected to the position of Executive Secretary, and the number of the entire of the organization the club has been turned over to the Board of Directors may require, to the extent of the number of additional students the Board of Directors shall appoint to the Board, and the Board of Directors shall have full power to remove them.

University Hymn HARMONY

"Take Off That Hat!" Chorus Songs

Well-Earned Recognition by its Vocal Achievements.

To the Editors of The Pennsylvania:

"Hall Pennsylvania" was, I believe, written to be sung in unison. Certain master minds, however, have, with due regard to the solemnity of the hymn, formed themselves into an informal club the purpose of renditing the singing more harmonious and perfect. The parts are interpolated usually toward the end of the third line. The bass singers tour out with great enthusiasm and with ever-increasing rage—"Take off that hat, take off that hat, take off that hat." The bass singers in the three or four silent, perfectly performed by the following, peasants and other ineruptive individuals at the head of one unfortunate—who is generally far too away to be able to reach them in return—who has incurred their displeasure by failing to remove his hat.

I have noticed my brains in vain to discern a valid excuse for such an exhibition of chidefulness, but have only succeeded by this exhaustive effort in seeing two very clear reasons for condemning it: (1) We are supposed to be paying respect to our Alma Mater in an solemn fashion as we can by shading our hymn in her honor. What kind of solemnity and respect can be manifested by endeavoring to remove a stranger's hat? (2) If Mr. A., of San Francisco, chooses to keep his hat on his head, it's none of our business. Raising our heads at the singing of "Hall Pennsylvania" is an outward and visible sign of an inward feeling of love and respect. It is puerile only to demand such a sign of a man who has no connection with the University, and who cannot possibly feel any love and respect for her.

If a man stands in church when others kneel. Is he bombarded with hymns and assailed with shouts till he kneels too? Even the disturbers of the peace in the grandstand would see the impropriety of such a thing. If they do, they may, by profound thought, perceive also the impropriety of their own conduct on Franklin Field.

Class Presidents Missing.

R. M. Shoemaker and C. M. Corwell, presidents of Sophomore and Freshmen classes, respectively, are both missing and their whereabouts are still unknown. The members of both classes are now looking themselves trying to recover their leaders for the Bowl Fight, which is to take place to-morrow.

In All Departments,

In all departments of the University, in Houston Hall, and in the hands of the several agents about college, the Pennsylvania Art Calendar for 1910 is selling at an almost phenomenal speed. During the Friday rush for Opera tickets, the calendar was displayed at The Pennsylvania office. It was viewed and enthusiastically commended upon by the hundreds who applied at that time.

Only a limited supply of the edition of 500 remains unused. A final canvas of the dormitories will be taken to-day and to-morrow. The Houston Chapel Club, too, will also handle the limited supply of fifty copies during this time.

The calendar is perfect as a Christmas gift representative of Pennsylvania. It sells for $1.25—Adv.
