"THE JUGGLER" IN RECITAL
Tender Simplicity of Garden's Best Decorum. "The Juggler," a light farce, will be given Thursday afternoon in the Kline Theatre by the members of the Psi Chi C. P. U. Theatre Club.

"Jeans," the little wonderting multitalented in the "The Juggler of Notre Dame" at the Independents this summer, will appear in the part of the star. The Juggler, who is one of the most graceful roles of the season. Theлага, a professional juggler, is the only man who can equal the Juggler's skill. He is a worthy successor to the great juggler of the stage, Professor Juggler, who has long been the idol of the American people.

Mr. Jeanes has been a juggling expert for many years and has made a specialty of the art. He is the only man who can equal the Juggler's skill.

At Thursday afternoon's recital on "The Juggler" a new feature will be introduced to the musical illustrations of the farce. As the curtain rises on the prelude to act three, in which the beautiful Legend of the Juggler's Sack is used to introduce the dances, students will be able to enjoy the 'cops' by Stuart F. Leconte.

The second feature will be a dance, to which the music of "The Juggler" will be added, and the students will be able to enjoy the "Juggler's" dance at 4:15.

Opera nights for students continue until March 1st, and the club is looking forward to a great evening of music.

The club's appreciation of the gift will be shown by the performance of a song in the style of the Juggler.
As Mr. Morice interprets the proposal, its passage would take from undergraduate hands the power to elect those who direct the workings of the institution which depends almost absolutely on undergraduate interest for its support. Such an interpretation of the measure is sufficient to condemn the eyes of those who are to cast their ballots this evening. The letter:

Editor-in-Chief of The Pennsylvania:

Dear Sir,—In my last letter I failed to call attention to the amendment of Article 14, Section 1, referred to this year’s meeting by last year’s meeting of the Athletic Association, and as this is a very important matter, it should receive full consideration by all undergraduate members of the Association.

If this amendment is passed, it will mean that the undergraduates will not be able to vote for any of the candidates for Graduate Directors. It may be argued that as the undergraduates in very few cases know the candidates for Graduate Directors personally, unless they happen to be recent graduates, they should have no voice in the selection. This, however, should not be the case, at least in my opinion, as it would tend to the anomalous condition of a majority of the Board of Directors being elected by a minority of the members, as the undergraduate members outnumber the graduate members of the Association.

Yours very truly,

W. N. MORICE.

AS LARGE A QUESTION.

They talk of revision of the football rules. The gridiron has taken its toll of the lives of the past few seasons, and the toll must not be so great in years to come.

Tuesday, the first day on which snows began to fall, witnessed six deaths from drowning in the States of New Jersey and Pennsylvania alone. Who shall draw up rules to prevent this toll of the Ice? It seems as large a question as that of football revision.

CITY REFORMERS TO ARGUE.

Trials for two teams to represent Pennsylvania in the Triangular Debate are to begin, and rapidly drawing near the final stages. Tonight, at eight o’clock, the semi-finals will be held in Price Hall, and promise to afford a spirited contest.

Sixteen contestants were held over from the preliminaries held on the 4th of the month, and will compete to-night for places on the two teams of six members each to debate in the finals next Friday. Those who will debate to-night are:

Dr. Child, Instructor of Public Speaking in the College Department, will have complete charge of the trials. The two men have drawn sides by lot, and will compete in two sets, each set being composed of two full sets, one side of each of the four debaters each.

The contestants will be allowed seven minutes for their main speeches and four minutes for rebuttal.

MEDICAL SCHOOL PORTRAIT
University Has 142 Paintings of Her Sons, Including All Her Provosts and Some Vice-Provosts.

An important addition has recently been made to the collection of portraits in the Medical Department of the University, the Portrait Committee having obtained an oil painting, by Lanz Rudolf, of Dr. Robert A. Hay, who graduated from the Medical Department in 1860, and was Professor of Children's Diseases in the University in 1876. Dr. Hay, who is at present Professor of Therapeutics at Jefferson Medical College, was editor of the University Medical Magazine in 1869, and is the author of many works on medical subjects.

The collection of portraits of ex-presidents in the Medical Department is now complete with but one exception, and this number will shortly be ordered to serve. The descendants of Dr. Adam Slaib and Dr. Jacob Randolf have promised to present all portraits of their ancestors to the University, and Julian Story has almost completed the portrait of Dr. Samuel G. Dixon, who is the present head of the State Health Department.

The University possesses a valuable and interesting collection of 142 life-size portraits of its former officers, of which forty-four are in the Medical School, twenty in the College, thirty-nine in the Library, fourteen in the Law School, and the remainder scattered through the other buildings. Many celebrated artists are represented in the collection: among them are five canvases by Biny. Several are by the famous woman artist, Corolla Beaux, and by many other famous artists. The University collection includes a portrait of every Provost from William Smith down to Provost Harrison, and also portraits of most of the Vice-Provosts.

Among the collection there are several canvases of exceptional artistic value. The famous masterpiece of Thomas Sully, the portrait of Dr. D. Hayes Agnew and his clinic, which now hangs in the Medical Building; Gamshamouth's portrait of Benjamin Franklin, now in the Library; American Colman's portrait of John Morgan, in the Medical Laboratory; Corolla Beaux's portrait of Henry Fox and Houston; in Houston Hall; and W. M. Chase's portrait of William Osier, in the Medical Laboratory. Besides the oil portraits there is a small collection of other canvases. In the Library there is a collection of 1000 bromide photographs of European works of art and masterpieces of celebrated artists, while the Law School contains the most and most complete collection of engravings of English and American portraits in this country.

INTERDEPARTMENT FOOTBALL
Interdepartment football games are virtually at an end, for "Mike" Murphy has forbidden the use of the Franklin Field gridiron for the rest of the season. The reasons given by Trainer Murphy are that the field is so hard it is impossible when trampled upon by large crowds. Moreover, the dressing rooms are to be cleaned, and no more large crowds. NOTED ORIENTAL HERE
Dr. Wu Ting-Fang, Celebrated Chinese Diplomat, and Speaker, to be Guest at the University Today.

Dr. Wu Ting-Fang, Chinese Minister to the United States, the most celebrated of the living Oriental Diplomats, and speaker of international fame, will be a guest at the University this afternoon. He will be entertained at an informal reception by the Chinese students at 2:30 o'clock at Houston Hall. Immediately after the reception he will be escorted to the home of the Provost, where he will be entertained by Provost and Mrs. Hartig, at dinner.

Dr. Wu comes to Philadelphia today upon the special invitation of "The American Academy of Political and Social Science," of which Dr. L. R. Heggs, the Wharton School, is the president. He will address the Academy on "The Significance of the Awakening of China." at Willowbrook Hall, Walnut and Juniper streets, this evening at 8:30 o'clock. The Chinese Minister has been the guest of honor of the Academy several times before, but since he is to return to his government in the near future, this will be his last appearance before the Academy.

In view of this fact, an elaborate farewell reception will be given him by the Academy after his address. Dr. Wu has personal connections with the Chicago Women's College. The honorary degree of Doctor of Laws was conferred upon him by Pennsylvania in 1903. In the same year, on Washington's birthday, he delivered the University Day Address, the first and only one such honor has ever been accorded to a foreigner in the history of the University Day Exercises.
