DR. WHARTON SINKLER DEAD

Graduate and Trustee of University Elected President of Philadelphia Hospital. Noted as Neurologist.

Dr. Wharton Sinkler, famous philanthropic and a Trustee of the University, died at his home, 1946 Walnut street, Philadelphia, last night after a week's illness. He was 68 years old. It was not thought that his condition was serious when he was admitted to the hospital two weeks ago, but it was not until then that his physicians were summoned to his bedside.

For years a trustee, Dr. Sinkler has been prominent in the medical profession in Philadelphia and throughout the country as a general practitioner and specialist on nervous diseases.

Dr. Sinkler was born in this city August 16, 1863, son of Samuel and Sarah Eleanor Sinkler. He was educated in Ohio, and later entered South Carolina College. He left his birthplace for Philadelphia, to which city he was assigned to study in the field of medicine. At the age of 21, he decided to concentrate on the medical field. At the age of 29, he opened his own practice in Philadelphia, and for the next 30 years he was a prominent figure in the city's medical community. Dr. Sinkler was a member of the Sigma Fraternity and the St. Andrew's Club of Mexico. He was also a member of the University Club and the Phi Beta Kappa Society.

The funeral will be held at 11 a.m. tomorrow morning. The service will be conducted by Dr. A. R. M. Poelster, President of the University, and a friend of the family.

B. Anderson, "When the last act of "Passion Play," the latest production of the Players Club, opens on the stage, the audience will be the objects of most of the remarks. This night might have been a part of any ordinary circumstances. But last night all rules and regulations were thrown aside, and the generally somber and dignified students took their places in the backs of the audience in all kinds of weather. As the curtain dropped, the stage was left to the effect of the play. The audience was left to think about the play.

The ancient play of the same name was performed in the are. The play was the first of the series of plays which are to be given next Thursday at the University. The play was given last Thursday, and will be repeated on Saturday. The audience was left to think about the play and the play itself.

The play of the same name was also performed in the audience. The audience was left to think about the play.

University of Pennsylvania in China and of the University Settlement are the two major beneficiaries of University activities to join in the movement which is to get at the roots of the culture student body of Pennsylvania is to show that one has the real Pennsylvania spirit—infatuation. To bang back is to show that it is at heart infatuation. The interests of Pennsylvania lie within feeling distance of the heart.

Never before has the responsibility of the students for these University undertakings been held automatically before the entire student body. Always before the contributions of the students to these ends have been pitifully small. It is high time to awaken the interest and generosity to the imperative call of these splendid enterprises.

THOSE SALTED EGGS.

An uproar of our little editorial about Lenix its importance, let us assume that one of our readers is becoming frightened at the rapid success of the Pennsylvania booster. That the University possesses a lawn mower of considerable capacity, and we have no doubt that the groundkeepers would lend it for a nominal rental to those students in need of it.

FIRST BRUSH OF THE SEASON.

First and Second Varsity Crew Race for Two and a Half Miles.

For the first time this season the crews indulged in practice brushes on the Schuylkill. The most interesting race of the day was that between the first and second Varsity combinations, which was won by the latter crew, composed entirely of Sophomores, by a length and a half. The races were started at the "Trolley Bridge," a distance of two and a half miles from the boat house. For the first mile the boats lapped one another and then gradually the Second boat pulled ahead until they led by ten lengths, but within a hundred yards of the boat house this lead was overcome by a sufficient sport on the part of the Varsity. On the first stretch, the Second Varsity again regained the lead, and at the finish the boat was a half length ahead. In another Varsity race the crew from New York, Captained by P. Smith, won from the regular "octopeds" combination, now rowing in a large, and at the finish had a length and a half to move after having overcome a two length lead by a remarkable sport.

The freshmen have not sufficiently mastered the mysteries of rowing to attempt any racing as yet, but will probably be given a chance to show their powers of rowing and endurance some time next week.

Dr. Herrick on Education.

Dr. Herrick a S. O. Herrick, the recently elected President of Girard College, and former Principal of the William Penn High School, addressed the students of the Wharton School yestereADAY on "The Advancement of Education in Pennsylvania."

"People need to consider the school or college a mental gymnasium, where minds develop their brain through academic exercise," said Dr. Herrick, "but again if we think the purpose of education is to fit men for life, hence our manual training departments and the Wharton School. The college is a part of society, and in it we teach men for active life by affording a part of life within the school. Life is a most intense and the highest thing that education can do to coach our citizens in its playing."
