KISTLER'S LAKE IS LONESOME

The Waters Sigh for Excitement and the Coaches for Men Who Can Do Twenty-seconds.

Kistler's Lake is unusually calm these days. The swimming call is out, but there are no swimmers. If you try case, be hush to exert yourselves. In the shadow of the woods, where the dunes have left long ago, the lake is quiet now, save for the whisper of the waves against the marble walls. Even the merlins of the water have dispersed and gone off to the shallows.

Coach Kistler declares that if candidates do not show up at the meeting tomorrow afternoon, there will be no swimming team this year. The current is too strong and the water too cold. He is most anxious to have a team again this year, and he is doing his best to find one. He is asking the coaches to go out and try to find candidates for the team. If no candidates can be found, then he will have to resign his position as coach. He is most anxious to have a strong team this year and he is doing everything he can to see that it is done.

Bennett has played basketball for three years, is prominent in class work and is also a member of the Carnegie Club and Phi Kappa Delta Fraternity.

ATHLETICS WIN FIRST GAME.

Connie Mack's Men Trounce the Cubs 4-1—Bender in Fine Form.

Before a crowd of 17,000 people, the Athletics won their first game of the season by a score of 4-1 against the Cubs. The victory was much needed and it was a great relief to the team.

The game opened with the Athletics taking the lead in the first inning by a score of 1-0. They scored again in the third inning for a total of 4 runs. The Cubs scored one run in the sixth inning but it was too little to make up for the deficit.

The Athletics went on to win the game by a score of 4-1, with Bender pitching a fine game. The Athletics were solid in every position and they were able to hold the Cubs to a single run.

The game was played in Chicago and it was witnessed by a large crowd of fans. The victory was much needed and it was a great relief to the team.

WHO GETS THE BANNER
Wireless Club Learns That Wellman Had One and We Know Why.
Aviator Keeps His Secret.

"Wellman—Wellman," urged the transmitter over in Houston Hall yesterday. "Well—Well," it repeated, and "W—W," continued the apparatus. But there was nothing doing. The receiver refused to respond and the only message which came back to the anxious throng was an echo from the million dollar pier, bewitching: "Wellman, Wellman."

But the score of operators in the poolroom above grew anxious. They had faith in the birdman and wanted to know where he was. The wireless plant was overhauled from the bat- teries to the spin-wire, all the jitters were groosed and prayers were offered up to the gods of the ether but no answer came. No one, not even the press, knew the bearings of the daring aviator.

There is a little romance woven around this journey, and, as a Red and Blue banner plays the leading role, everybody is anxious that the "America" shall reach British soil.

Two weeks ago, Walter Wellman, unannounced and traveling incognito, walked into P. Houston's store at Thirty-seventh and Pine streets, and asked to see some banners. Houston had some new ones, just in, so spread them all out on the counter. The stranger looked at them all and finally selected one with a blue border, the kind with blue letters set on a red field.

Rumor has it that the banner is des- tined for a blue-wooden London maid whom Wellman met in Atlantic City last summer. The lad's name could not be ascertained, but a workman on the "America," who was left behind, said he had a title. The banner was not flung at the mast of the great airship when she left on her journey last Saturday. Oh, no: it was wrapped in four folds of canvas and stored in one of the pockets of the life-boat.

And that is why the wireless boys are working overtime to hear from Wellman. They don't know how many records he's broken. They want to know who gets the Pennsylvania banner.
