When The Pennsylvania announced the appointment of Provost-elect Smith, it said he was "too happy to say anything" to express his feelings on the news. However, the provost-elect, Dr. Edgar P. Smith, found a way to express his happiness and gratitude. He sent a telegram to The Pennsylvania, expressing his joy and thanks for the appointment. The telegram read: "I am too happy to say anything at present."

Dr. Smith was elated by the appointment and wished to convey his gratitude to the university for the honor. He believed that the appointment was a reflection of the university's confidence in him and his abilities. Dr. Smith had been a member of the university faculty for many years and had contributed significantly to its success. His appointment as provost-elect was a testament to his dedication and commitment to the university.

Dr. Smith's appointment came after a lengthy search by the university to find a successor to the retiring provost, Dr. John A. Harrington. The search had been conducted with great care and attention, and the university was pleased with the appointment of Dr. Smith. He was a respected member of the faculty, and his appointment was seen as a significant milestone for the university.

The university community was excited by the appointment and the prospects it held for the future. Dr. Smith's appointment was seen as a signal of the university's commitment to excellence and progress. The university was confident that Dr. Smith would bring new energy and ideas to the institution, and that he would work tirelessly to ensure its continued success.

The appointment of Dr. Smith was not without its challenges. The university faced many difficulties and obstacles during the years leading up to his appointment. Despite these challenges, Dr. Smith was determined to overcome them and lead the university to new heights. He was confident in his abilities and in the capabilities of the faculty and students, and he was committed to ensuring that the university remained a leader in education and research.

The appointment of Dr. Smith was a cause for celebration throughout the university community. The faculty, students, and alumni were all excited by the prospect of working with Dr. Smith and were confident that he would bring new energy and ideas to the institution. The university was looking forward to a bright and successful future under his leadership.
ARCHITECTS IN NOVEL CONTEST.

To Spend Nine Hours Incessantly in Designing Competition with Other Big Universities.

One of the most grueling contests ever held in the University will take place Saturday in the drafting room of the Architectural Department. It is not to be an athletic event nor a pica-eating contest, but rather a competition in which men in the department can furnish both the best designs and the greatest amount of design between the hours of 1 and 10.

The Intercollegiate Architectural Federation is responsible for this novel contest. It is in a training of an architect. It is sure to be a real drawing affair.

The members of the fifth and sixth classes have been in training for the past two weeks developing their start

BOOKS FIND A HAVEN
Nitzsche's Collection of Alumni's Works Receives Special Section in the University Library.

The ten thousand or more books which have been written by the Alumni of Pennsylvania and collected by Mr. George Nitzsche, "P. L.," and Dr. William S. Wadsworth, have at last found a home and are assigned to a special section of the University Library.

In 1877 Mr. Nitzsche conceived the idea of forming a library of the many books which had been written either by alumni or students of the University. He immediately began work upon this project, and in a short time had collected several thousand volumes. The collection began to arouse a great deal of attention among publishers and others. Mr. Nitzsche soon began to receive from the various book dealers of the country volumes which had been written by Pennsylvania men. From the libraries of many of the old Philadelphia families came old-fashioned, and often dilapidated, books back to the Revolutionary days. The writings of the first Professors and of the teachers and graduates of the University in the time of Washington and Franklin were taken from many a dusty shelf and sent to Mr. Nitzsche's library. His collection became more and more valuable, and he soon began to plan for some particular place in the University Library for those books.

Meanwhile, Dr. William S. Wadsworth, also an alum, had been gathering the writings of the many medical authorities which Pennsylvania has produced. This collection was placed in the Library of Pathology in 1914, but grew so large that it overflowed into various departments of the University.

Mr. Nitzsche and Dr. Wadsworth had been talking of combining their collections for some time, when the matter came to the care of President Harrison and of J. O. Rosengarten, chairman of the Library Committee, and of the Board of Trustees. They immediately took up the matter and a special place will now be provided for these collections, which will probably be called the "Memorial Library of the Publications of the University of Pennsylvania and Pennsylvania Men."

Student Aviators to Take Part in Meet.
Aviators of the University will contribute their share to the successful carrying out of the aviation meet to be held from today in November 24, at Point Breeze Park. The meet is expected to draw large crowds, as both Graham-White and Harman will perform. Graham-White will have both his Parsons and his Monorplane with him, and has promised that on the day of the meet he will attempt to fly around the statue of William Penn on a single cylinder. Harmer-Helger has been engaged to drive his thirty-horse-power Pullman car against Graham-White on the half-mile track at the park, thereby providing the novel spectacle of an auto-airplane race.

The meet starts each day at 1:30, and these students who wish to join on the admission fee of one dollar by serving as ushers should ask Franklin Weiss, President of the U. of P. Aero Club, as soon as possible.

Rather Smoke Than Eat.
At a meeting of the House of Delegates, the Undergraduate Medical Association, which was held yesterday, it was decided to substitute for the usual annual banquet an informal smoker, which is to be held in the Green Room of the Beliveau-Straub, on January 14, 1911. It is expected that an old Mast and Wrigg will preside over one of their shows for the entertainment of the fellows; and arrangements are under way to secure some eminent surgeon to make the speech of the evening.

Soccer Eleven Improves in Team Work.
Last improvement in team work was shown in the soccer practice yesterday by the Varsity. After some preliminary work in shooting goals the Varsity lined up against the Scrubs. The first team had little difficulty in scoring on the Scrubs and the final score being 5 goals to 6. Sullivan and Laird scored for the Varsity, netting two goals apiece.
