FIRST BASKETBALL TRIP

The varsity basketball team leaves for Charlottesville this morning, where they will play the University of Virginia. The varsity team is in excellent condition and looks forward to a successful trip.

FAVORS SUMMER BALL

Dr. McNelis thinks it is legitimate for students to attend a Summer Ball Base.

Summer base ball was tabled at the recent meeting of the Intercollegiate Athletic Association of Northern States. The4 of the college who had been favoring the idea favor the regulations of the institutions that have always been outspoken against it. Dr. E. T. McNeil, one of Pennsylvania’s representatives at the conference, dissented strongly from the report when interviewed, gave these reasons:

"Summer base ball is much better for a man than waiting upon tables."

"It is a legitimate calling and offers an unusually fine way of earning a living. Some colleges and universities, in addition to the Penn State, for instance, allow men who play summer ball to represent their respective institutions on the diamond."

The majority of our institutions believe in the necessity of keeping up the standards of our professional ball players from intercollegiate competition. But the Pennsylvania regulations have their faults and their good points.

"It has been said that ninety percent of the men who play college base ball have played for money, and although this is rather high, nevertheless it is well known that there are many professional contests open to college men. This fact puts to the efficiency of the college rules regarding ball, and the requirement of a small fee from the players which most institutions insist on."

"The answer to this query would be to allow men to play for money to represent their colleges, since there seems to be no harm in allowing them to play from playing."

"For these reasons a great deal of money is being raised, and it would be unwise to say that the institution would not be well advised to allow men who play for money to represent their college."

In answer, Mr. Dr. McNelis said in part: "I do not believe that college base ball is a means for making money, but a means for making good."

The question of making money is finally a problem for every person. I think that the institution is doing all it can to provide the money necessary for the institution, and that this must be to the best advantage of the institution, and that it is the institution which must be to the best advantage of the institution."

"A good point for which the institution is to be thanked."

"If we are to have the money which the institution is to be used for the institution, and that this must be to the best advantage of the institution."

The interscholastic Athletic Association put its stamp of disapproval upon it recently, Red is it not likely that any general sanctions will be given to the idea within the next few years. Yet the question is not settled, and, as evidenced by Wednesday's action of the students of Nebraska, new champions of this form of earning money are appearing every now and then.

Every afternoon that a ball game is to be played the holder of the position is presented with an afternoon off. And having nothing to do, the ball player "gratuitously" offers his services to the ball club. It is remarkable how often the coincidence of an afternoon off and a ball game occurs.

Sophomore Will Try to Enlist Students in Service of Great Labrador Mission with illustrated Talk.

Plans are being made to send a delegation of men from the University to help Dr. Wilfred T. Grenfell in his medical missionary work among the deep sea fishermen of Labrador.

Louis P. Fallon, a Sophomore, is in charge of the movement. For the last two summers he has been working in hospitals, of which Dr. Grenfell has established four, along the coast of Labrador. Every spring between twenty-five and thirty college men go to the north to work in connection with the Medical Missions.

Fallon is collecting money for the building of a thousand-dollar launch, to be called the “Pennsylvania,” and to be used in cruising along the Labrador coast in the service of Dr. Grenfell. He has already obtained $150 of this amount. On next Thursday evening he will deliver an illustrated lecture in Houston Hall underlinenum on the work in Labrador. He will be assisted by Brewster Bland and Morgan Parson, Dispensary and Science Department, who are interested in the Labrador work.

J. Frederick Thomas, 941 Locust street, who has charge of the Philadelphia branch of the Grenfell Association, is cooperating with Mr. Fallon in the work of raising money for the boat.

Both Harvard and Yale have pro-vided horses of the type desired, the one furnished by Harvard costing $4,000. So far only one of the horses taken here have ever taken part in such a work, but Fallon hopes tointerest many more.

He says that it is an ideal way to spend the summer and that the experience will work wonders for the health. His pictures will illustrate the varied and interesting character of the life and the many ways in which the university men spend their time there. Last year there were seven men from Harvard, seven from Yale and Princeton, four from Dartmouth and one from Pennsylvania, while a number of smaller colleges were also represented.

Although contributions toward raising the boat fund will be acceptable, there will be no admission charge to the lecture and no collection will be taken up.
