Senior Senator Tustin presented a bill in the State House, requesting the appropriation of funds to the library and the veterinary extension. The bill was later reported on by Dr.6. R.2. Post. The veterinary health extension was approved, and an appropriation was made for the extension of the library and veterinary extension. Senator Tustin's bill provides for the increase of $160,000 for buildings and equipment, $160,000 for maintenance of the present buildings, and $150,000 for extension of surgical wards to the hospital. The bill also supplies a long-needed fund to provide $150,000 for the extension of the surgical wards to the hospital.

Senator Tustin pointed out that the present registration book has been in use for the last nine years and that it has not been able to meet the demands of the university. He added that the number of men on the campus has increased from 3,757 to 5,189, or an increase of 44.2%, and that the registrations have increased from 14,089.26 to 18,100.32, or an increase of 28.6.

Dear Sir,—In the matter of the election of the House Men.

As is widely known among the students, and especially the freshmen, this election is supposed to be an honor election. In the absence of the candidates, non-candidates, and non-nominees, the names of the nominees who were elected as the candidates for these above-mentioned positions were to be known only to the tellers of the election. There was to be no evidence of any attempt to influence the election results in any way.

COUNT APPONYI DECRIES WAR

Tells Large Audience That Time for Disarming Is Not Yet Ripe.
Inspired by Student Audience.

Disarming of the nations at the present time was declared to be the height of folly yesterday by Count Albert Apponyi, the great Hungarian statesman, in an address upon the significance of the movement for international peace, before a crowded audience in Houston Hall.

"The time for disarmament, a question which is most popular and yet which takes hold of the more unthinking minds, is not yet ripe. When it comes it must be simultaneous. It would be the height of folly for any nation to take this step at present, when peace is not secure. We must not act with respect to present conditions. We cannot do away with the fact that the possibility of war exists. Not to arm ourselves because we believe in peace is as foolish as not to lock one's door because one believes in honesty.

Any one who has known my public life would laugh at the thought that I should advocate disarmament."

In opening his address Count Apponyi declared that "the preservation of peace is now the main object of diplomacy. The hope of the future," he continued, "is to make peace dependent upon the goodwill of individual rulers, not upon the tendencies that prevail this year or the next year in the public policy of nations, but to make it secure among their institutions.

Count Apponyi was delighted with the great audience of students which filled the auditorium. It is an inspiration to speak to so many young men."

Dr. Leo S. Rowe, Professor of Political Science in the Wharton School, introduced the Count.

Count Apponyi spent nearly an hour in answering the various points of interest about the campaign to the company of Dr. John H. Muener, who is acting as his host.
