Societies Need Hold Last Banquet

Most Successful Undergraduate Dinner was held last night. Eclipsing all previous banquets of the class, in spirit displayed, In excellence of dinner, and in feeling of cordiality, the Senior Banquet in the league the race for first, night, was a fitting culmination of a series of more than successful undergraduate dinners.

Barrell H. Smith acted as toastmaster, and_ the entire function was a matter that sparkled with wit and humor. He said that the right of Union, and is the most appropriate class. The way the raised its伊始- express of the exalted and honored introductions.

President Williams commended the Faculty, made an appeal to the students of each Pennsyl- vania in all sections. He urged that when the members of the class vote last night was a success because it was clear that they do missionary work for Pennsylvania.

To-day the President, President H. Hart, Jr., responded to a toast—"The Family!"—saying that the President was just the right sort of man to head the class of '13. Dr. W. J. Peters was elected president of "the Family" and in closing, "that we believe," he said in closing, "that they are men who show interest in college affairs, as well as in academic lines.

William J. Hough presented the "Diplomats" and the class in general. He affirmed that the class was better trained than the class that has ever entered Pennsylvania. Hough stated that the class is more various in different branches of knowledge, and that the class is better and well received.

H. Molke Kienowert, Editor-in-Chief of The Pennsylvania, spoke in particulars in the things that have been done to make the undergraduate life of the University cleaner and better.

The last speech of the evening was made to Ernest Bradley Cowen, Presi- dent of the class, who emphasized the good of "doing something for Pennsyl- vania" and "keeping together."

As a fitting close to this more than enjoyable occasion, a call on Harry Schmidt to lead in singing "Half Pennsylvania."

Harvard and Princeton expected to take the first place in Pennsylvania.

There is a possibility that Harvard and Princeton may enter the Intercol- legiate Cricket League. All the candidates are represented by strong teams. The Harvard and Cornell Cricket teams are in Intercollegiate cricket will undoubt- edly be a success in Pennsylvania. Harvard and Cornell are at present the only two strong teams in Pennsylvania.

Williams Urges Disbarment

Proposition to Exclude Professional School Men from Athletic Teams Meets His Approval.

Dr. Carl Williams, Pennsylvania's representative on the Football Rules Committee, is a strong advocate of re- stricting the college football teams to students on the College Department alone. In an interview with Dr. Wil- liams yesterday afternoon, he said:

"The only way that we can hope to play football with either Princeton or Harvard is by adopting some such rule. If a mutual agreement, under any such rules, were to be adopted with Harvard, we would in all probability be playing them a football game within a very few years."

Dr. Williams went on further to say that there was a movement to restrict this rule so as to apply only to the football team, but it was found to be impossible to do this, because if any professional school men were to be barred from football, they should be excluded from everything else.

At a meeting of the Board of Directors of the Athletic Association, the sentiment of the graduates seemed to be in favor of having all the students (throughout the University), excluding only the teams in all athletic varsity teams, as elsewhere. Some of the graduates think that, intest aut as we are a University, it is only right and proper that the students in the professional schools should be eligible to represent the University.

MAY BE LAST STUDENT NIGHT

Violation of Rules May Result in the Withdrawal of Privileges

"Gurum" is billed for tonight at the Metropolitian Opera House, with the usual cast of Margaretta Sylva in the titular role, Gaudenzio as Don Juan and Duffane as Eboliand. Additional interest will be lent the produc- tion with the appearance of the famous Celli Lilli Lichewaks in the part of Almire. Blaise's melodious opera has always been popular with stu- dents, and this will probably be its final production during the current season.

Restrictions of the rules governing the taking of reduction cards has made it doubtful as to whether or not there will be reduction privileges for tomorrow's production. The opera authorities have been much displeased at several violations of the rule gov- erning transfer of tickets, and it is more than possible that the privileges will be withdrawn. Announcement of further developments will be made in tomorrow's Pennsylvania.
Ask the same man, however, to name the six men most prominent at the present time in American poetry, and he will look surprised. Ask him about the living Frenchmen or the contemporary Germans, and he will look dumfounded that you should expect him to know such things. Is this a condition which should exist? It is well enough to say, "Consult an encyclopedia," but to do this you must first have the names of the men to be looked up, and secondly you must have an encyclopedia such as never was on land or sea. The encyclopedic innovation was a notable one, but it has as yet failed to produce any specimens which provide information as to the relative standing of men of the times or a comparative study of temporary movements in other lands.

It would seem, therefore, that there is a gap to be filled, a need to be met. Put a man in touch with the contemporary situation, and he can stay in touch by intelligent reading of any of a number of periodicals. The work which falls to the University is to put him in touch without making it necessary for him to dig through incommensurable treatises and periodicals, making note here and there until he has compiled a whole.

A course in contemporary poetry in Europe would be an excellent innovation. There is at present being offered a course on the Modern Novel which might easily be made a little more general so as to make it a great deal more useful. In these courses men and movements might be studied and compared. Of course, only the prominent men and the prominent movements could be included. But it is these that count in the end. And it is these with which an educated man should be acquainted.

LABRADOR AND NORTHLAND

W. T. Grenfell, the Noted Doctor and Missionary, Will Tell Life in the Northern Wilds.

Wilfred T. Grenfell, the "Mariner Missionary of Labrador," will speak on "The Far North, Labrador, Newfoundland and the Life of the Deep Sea," at the regular 11 o'clock service next Sunday. Owing to the large audience anticipated, the service will be held in Wheatman Hall.

Dr. Grenfell's talk will be on the Labrador Mission and the perils and hardships endured by the deep sea fishermen of those coasts. He will show the great philanthropie work that the mission does in combating the various diseases and in caring for accidents.

Dr. Grenfell is the most interesting man that has addressed the Sunday service for a long time. The reviewer of his work dates back to 1902, when he established a station at St. Anthony, on the northeast shore of New- foundland, and crept up and down the coast in a small launch, ministering to the fishermen. At the present time there are three stations and a hospital aboard which visits the various settlements during the open season.

At the Wheatman Hall and oldest station on the Newfound- land coast. The mission hospital is here and the base of supplies. Battle Harbour, off the Labra- dor coast, is the next station to the north. It is in charge of a native missionary. The nurse stays there the whole year. Indian Harbour, halfway up the coast, is an old mission, and is only open through the fishing season. All of these have a resident physician and assistants who travel in a re- pri\  a t  ra  ted mail.

There is a subscription being raised among the students to raise $1,000 to equip a launch such as Harvard. Yale and Princeton have given. About five hundred of the dollars of this has been raised, and it is hoped that there will be a liberal subscription on Sunday.

SEF OF RARE OLD PAMPHLETS.

Library Receives Valuable Volume from

Dr. Harrison and Mr. Doudereau.

Through the kindness of ex-President Harrison and Mr. Albert Doucotre, the University Library will receive the repri- ntg of yesterday of a valuable volume of old pamphlets. Choose from many subjects of local interest to Philadelp- hians.

One of the most interesting articles contains the Vitality, Address to the graduating Medical Class of 1819 by the Rev. Dr. William B. Yeats who graduated from the College in 1819 and is the son of Benjamin Rush, the signer of the Declaration of Independence. This is considered a valuable addition, as the Library already has Dr. Bany's Ph. D. Thesis.

Among the many curious essays is a list of the wealthy citizens of Phila- delphia in 1843, giving information about their fortune, habits and polit- ics. Such names as Girard, Dallas and Forrest are mentioned. One article remarks that there were but two million-aiins in New York at that time. William B. Astor and Peter Lorillard, Columbia College, was valued at $1100 in 1843.

Other pamphlets are on such sub- jects as "An Appeal in behalf of Infants," "The Throne of Inconstancy," relating to alcoholic beverages; "Early Hydro-Electric Chairs," and many more similar character.

SOCIETY FOR THE COSMOPOLITANS.

Dr. C. Kelser, head of the Depart- ment of Sociology, will give a lecture in the Cosmopolitan Club, 3110 Walnut street, on the Social Trend of Babel Diff- erences," at 2 o'clock on Tuesday, March 5th. The lecture is sure to be interesting, since Dr. Kelser is noted for his lucid and entertaining style. At the same time tickets and programs for the club’s unique entertainment on April 4th will be distributed. Following the lecture a "smoker" will be held.

RIVAL FOR WHARTON SCHOOL.

Prof. J. Russell Smith Predicts Growth for Harvard's Finance School.

Professor J. Russell Smith, of the Wharton School, has returned from Cambridge, Mass., where he delivered a series of lectures before the Graduate School of Business Administration of Harvard University.

In speaking of the system employed at Harvard for business training, Dr. Smith said: "The School of Business Administration at Harvard is open only to graduate students, men with degrees. In our Wharton School, as planned by Mr. forces, the students receive a two-year training, which includes the principles of business, a minimum training in the foundations of business administration, and a minimum training in subjects for mental development."

At Harvard the student is supposed to have had training in citizenship and arts subjects previous to his entering the School of Business Administration, and thus he is able to devote the two years of the course entirely to the study of business principles. Although the school has been in existence only three years, it has an enrollment of 600 students, and its foundation is an exceptionally fine one.

In a recent circular to put the school on a firm footing, the Harvard authorities are saying new things about the possibilities that lie before the student. Besides Dr. Smith, Professor L. A. Rowe, Professor M. L. Conwell and Professor Conwell have made a similar statement.
