The three fellowship holders, McArthur, Bissenblael and Dame, Princeton, Pennsylvania, are on their way to New York this week to the annual meeting of the Wharton School of Finance and Commerce. The fellowship is given in recognition of the best work in political economy in the Wharton School. It is a competition for three fellowship holders of Bachelor Degrees.

All applications for competitions for the three Graduate Fellowships in Architecture are to be made to the Architectural Foundation of the University of Pennsylvania, Philadelphia, 36th Street and the Parkway.

The competition is closed without reservation to age, race, or sex, in favor of holders of a Bachelor's degree in architecture equivalent to that of Pennsylvania. Application should be accompanied by a letter, submission, drawing, or photograph of the best work in advanced work in design and any additional information that may be of service to the judges.

The fellowships, which were established last year by the Architectural Alumni Society, are for six hundred dollars each. Applicants must have passed the regular entrance examination to Pennsylvania for the Master's degree, conferred upon completion of advanced work in architecture.

The fellowship for 1911-1912 will be given to the three candidates who show the greatest merit in the work submitted, with particular reference to the demonstration of a desire to devote themselves to the advancement of the subject chosen as a major in the curriculum of the university.

This year's Ivy Ball will be radically different from college dances of former years in that there will be no movement of the floor, the change from the proscenium scheme of decoration and the program in the program. The floor has undergone, in the past few days, a violent upheaval, and is expected to be quite a show. A new creation of the most brilliant variety, with no black or white, has been put on that will mimic the "wriggling" that has formerly prevailed.

The rules and regulations of the color scheme and is prominent in the total decorations and arrangement of the affair. This is a departure from the green, white and pink of former years, and is expected to be quite much more of a Pennsylvania atmosphere to the eyes of the student body present.

The orchestra is being rounded out with much care. The best middle-distance and sprinter, Riddle, is being included in the program, and has been showing up remarkably well in practice.

The schedule for last year's Pennsylvania aggregation, the championship of the Potomac, is being debated of all. How, Hayden and Smith will be included in the team, and probably the fourth being Hayden and Smith and the other two from practice than ever before, and it is expected to be with both sides as well as the players that "Mill's" will be turned, with the aim of trying to take Maryland's place on the program.

Princeton News

Will practically the same team as last year, Coach Stagg, of Chicago, has been working with the players, who are getting in as good a shape as they possibly can. The last few days have been spent on practice than ever before, and it is expected that the team will be as strong as in the beginning.

In the team, while there are many new ones, there are far more than forty members as there were last year. There are far more players this year for some reason unknown, and it is expected that they will be ready for the big game. coach Thorns had a change in the team for the first time this week (April 27), the polls being taken on the basis of last year's croquet and the one to be built this year, and it is expected that the team will be re-formed on the new basis.

The outcome of this game will be decided in the效果 of the Whitman's and the Bolling, who are expected to be the best team in the league. coach Thorns had a change in the team for the first time this week (April 27), the polls being taken on the basis of last year's croquet and the one to be built this year, and it is expected that the team will be re-formed on the new basis.

than our own. Every student who wishes his association with his alma mater to be creditable to him and his high school, and who is desirous of securing his name synonymous with the best interests of progress and refinement, cannot wish otherwise than its absolute adoption. It is not creditable, it is nothing but that either clean or wholesome. It represents, cover it up in what way we will, the noisy point of view.

So far then, I go most heartily with "Senior." But here I am forced to part ways with him and ask: Why, if having is a bliss on our fair name as the 'reconstructed University of the country'—and we all want the University of Pennsylvania to be that—why should we enter into it in drooping it? Is it if it is desirable as it is—are we under any obligation to make terms for the first time in our lives? Isn't it a popular precept that a vice he dropped gradually, but that is a concession of the weakness of the flesh and not a condition of successful treatment. And when "Senior" suggests that it might tolerate the fall of having if freshmen were required "to step off the sidewalk and asking a member of a higher class" (how they that word "higher" sounds), he is only throwing a sop to Cortez. On this ground, why should not a senior step off the sidewalk when passing a member of the Faculty?

Having in no ugly in this as in its rugged forms. Let it at once, and let us not be timorous in parting with it. No conceivable great event came from bullying.

Your very truly,

T. D. O'BORI.

Major DeLaney at Medical School: Major DeLaney, of Washington, the President's physician, and a graduate of the Medical School, made a visit to the University yesterday. He gave an address to the four hundred medical students, in which he emphasized the importance and demand for competent men in the army medical service.
