TETRAZZINI CHARMS IN RENEWAL OF "LUCIA"
Prime Donna Gathered by Enthusiastic House After Two Years' Absence. Bassi Scores as Edgar.

THREE OPERAS THIS WEEK.

Tetrazzini and "Lucia" proved so attractive last night that every seat in the house was sold out before mid-week. (The presence of the students had been suggested at the end of the previous week.) The house was turned away without even obtaining standing room. The overcoming was due to a minute, on the part of other institutions in attracting such prestige casts than had been assigned them.

The crowded house received the diva with much enthusiasm, repeatedly executing the declarations in the first act of the "Old Scene," as appeared, for the first time this year, in the side boxes and made a capable fill to the potential columns.

There will be at least three hundred and twenty-five persons in the house for the coming performance of "Carmen," the dance-Magnus score of "Lucia." The same cast that presented the performance, including the students from this Terrific, will be heard. The Saturday matinee will bring for the first time the "Ludovica." It is possible that a few weeks' will be obtainable for the latter. Fortunately, it is certain that a good season will be reserved for the house for the closing performance of the current season. The successful run of "Hansel and Gretel" being ended at the attention.

The Philadelphia commission upon the building is now looking forward to Monday night, and until its conclusion the press will have to be content with one performance each week by the Metropolitan Company.
