First Flight This Morning at 10.—Two More Next Day. (From Our Work This Year,)

Exactly one hundred aspirants for a place in the dancing classes of "Miss Ohio State" were at the Majestic last evening, although the contest was limited to that of last year. Stage pres. Joe Morris, the regular manager of the Majestic, had already selected registration officers to register aspirants according with the ability of the men who reported.

The first tryout for the chorus was this morning at 10. Only a few of the men who registered will be given a preliminary trial. Quite a large cut will be made from the showing made this morning, and the squad will be further reduced during mid-week. Auditions for the chorus will be made on Wednesday next week, the same at 10, 40.00 o'clock, and the second one to be announced later. Registration cards for the next tryout for men during mid-weeks.

Auditions for choruses will be made next week, at the same place at all at the same time as announced, and who will be prepared to report on Wednesday with registration cards in proper order and two leaves of that day.

The films were made to assist in the selection of the audience of the player, to show that the director, and to assist in the selection of the player who will be shown for the tryout. THE TIME AND THE PLACE.
Certain freshmen who have been making the night air tedious with demonstrations of their exhaustion around parts of the Triangle recently will do well to remember that there is time and place for all things and that the dominoes at the time of the mid-year are not the place for the forms of roughhouse that have made study a double burden for the vast majority who now "police" for the toasts of next week. Silence is rooted in this season above all others.

BARNARD DEBATE POSTPONED.
Zeus and Columbia Society Will Meet Next Week.

The annual debate between the Zealot Literary Society and the Barnard Society of Columbia, which was scheduled to take place last night, has been postponed until some time next week. The exact date is not yet set.

The question for this year's debate is the same one that will be used in the "Varsity triangular debates March 23-24": That the Sherman Anti-Trust Law should be repealed and amended in such a way that would subject large corporations to a policy of regulation instead of to a "laissez faire" policy.

The Pennsylvania society argues for the regulation of business, while the Zealot society will be composed of Byron Lang, George H. Copeland, and G. B. Williams.

DEAN FISHER ANSWERS PAPER.
States His Exact Views on Rejection of University Spots to College

That there is an prospect of re-stricting University sports to the Col-lege Department, as stated by a down-town newspaper yesterday afternoon, and that the rumor has grown to such proportions as to call forth an interview in question by Dean George E. Fisher, was flatly denied yesterday.

The article in question quoted Dean Fisher as saying: "I believe that all students of the University, whether they be in the College or the Profes-sional Departments, should be permitted to take part in University sports."

"I would suggest but one restriction—that a student coming to Penn-sylvania from another college where he has been engaged in athletics for four years, should not be permitted to represent Pennsylvania."

"The argument that many of the professional Department students un-derstand that those in the College is not only a matter of consideration. Such a ruling would be unfair and would work a hardship on the professional Department."

Dean Fisher, when asked today concerning the truth of the above state-ments, said: "I did not make either of these statements. However, I was quoted correctly as saying that a student coming from another college where he has been engaged in athletics for four years might not be permitted to represent Pennsylvania."

"When I was interviewed yesterday, over the telephone, I stated that I was unaware that such a rule had been passed. It is a question outside of my jurisdiction, and is for other Uni-versity authorities than myself to de-termine. In a question of such im-portance as this, the opinion of the entire Academic Council would be needed, I feel. It is the Ten-nessee of the University to decide."

For a student a registered in a Professional School should be allowed to play, but not to engage from athletes. But no general rule can be made. In any event, much of the hardship. We should endeavor to minimize it as far as possible."

"All such broad questions should be determined by an agreement between rival institutions. No one university can successfully formulate such radical conditions of eligibility."

 MID-YEAR PUNCH BOWL OUT.
Clever Drawings, Verses and Sketches Make I'm Just Worth Reading.

The mid-year number of "The Punch Bowl" is in the stands with an unusually large collection of rhymes and treason for the amusement of "everybody."..."The issue is rather small, but more than meets the eye. The lack of quality in the quality of its pages, particularly the drawings, has been, in the lower branch of the Department of Art, where the student has not been properly instructed, has been handled in a more satisfactory way by the students. The sketches are exceptionally good, and their quality marks a distinct improvement on the approaching subject."

Despite of a note in some of the verses, the lines are very good and the rhymes are very good and the quality of the lines, particularly the drawings, has been, in the lower branch of the Department of Art, where the student has not been properly instructed, has been handled in a more satisfactory way by the students. The sketches are exceptionally good, and their quality marks a distinct improvement on the approaching subject..."In the latter branch of the Department of Art, where the student has not been properly instructed, has been handled in a more satisfactory way by the students. The sketches are exceptionally good, and their quality marks a distinct improvement on the approaching subject."

"The speech that many of the students in the College are using are very good and the rhymes are very good and the quality of the lines, particularly the drawings, has been, in the lower branch of the Department of Art, where the student has not been properly instructed, has been handled in a more satisfactory way by the students. LADY GREGORY GIVES ADVICE.

Tells Zeio Players Coming Generation Controls Future of Stage.

Last night witnessed the largest turnout of candidates life has ever had for any literary activity, on the occasion of the preliminary trials for two of Lady Gregory's plays, which will be produced on March 15 by the society.

This was due doubtless to the recent visit of Lady Gregory, the great patroness of the Celtic Renaissance, to the University and the occasion of the visit of the Irish Players to Philadelphia.

Graham Starr, chairman of the Dramatic Committee, has secured the playing rights of "The Poll Moon," and "The Footsteps of the Newell," and "Braithint Halpin," two of which will be given by the cast to be announced tomorrow by Coach W. M. Price, College '38, who produced "The Birlins" so successfully last December.

When visited by the Dramatic Committee, Lady Gregory said: "I am very much interested in all young men and am one of your young men from the colleges. Naturally, I am interested in dramatic, because the future of the stage lies in the hands of the young man. But in all your dramatic activities you should remember to keep your scenery as simple as possible and never to go for a play which you are unwilling to keep in the repertory." She stated that such simple rules as these have shaped the whole of her own dramatic work in the Renaissance movement.

This is the first time any of these plays have been produced by an amateur dramatic organization in this country, and as they are all typical of Irish peasant life and rollicking farces, they are certain to be highly successful.

The committee, under the leadership of J. F. Swartz, '12, has been busy as work for several weeks. The building will be decorated by Haberdash, while Kerr provides something unique in the way of programs. The list of names has not as yet been announced. The success of this social event of the college year is well as- sured.
