MR. F. C. WILLIAMS' ADDRESS.
Prominent Journalist Will Give Talks to Members of Various Student Organizations Tomorrow.

PENNSYLVANIA AND YALE IN TWELVE-TENNING TIE, 3-5
Blue Events Score in Ninth and Thirteenth, Rake Yale to Harmer Halls Contest.

VARSITY HITS BALL HARD
After leading Yale for eight and one-half innings at New Haven Saturday, the Blue hit a home run and tied the Harvard game to be held against them today.

FRANCIS CHURCHILL WILLIAMS, assistant editor of the New York Times, will address the Combined Student Organizations here tonight in room 1126 of the Student Union. The talk will be informal and in the nature of a personal appearance on the relation of undergraduate education to similar work in later life.

The address will be the fifth in a series given under the auspices of the Press Club by men of prominence and accomplishment in journalism and literature.

No records were broken, Pennsylvania first time was made in all of the races, in view of the fact that it won high across the field continuously, considerably hampering the nearest competition. The track was in the best of condition.

The Celts and Mercer of Pennsylvania were the individual stars of the meet, the former capturing 23 points and the latter 14. The Indian club took 82 points, and the Blue was second with 80 and the Crimson third with 76.

The Celts had little trouble, although Twainha, the Indian, Oakes, and Committee, the Merchants, were in the thick of the two-mile. The Red was running a smart and fast finish.

The field events were the weakest of the day, all the performers in poor form. Pennsylvania's poor showing in the absence of her regular valets, Burnet and Holton, made all the difference.

PRIZE DRAWINGS ON EXHIBIT

The prize drawings of the Intercollegiate Architectural competition, in which the students of the University proved their school the leader of Architectural Schools in America, will be placed on exhibition in the University Museum from May 11 to May 17. It is encouraging to the students to receive, with the prize designs, all drawings entered in the competition.

The Museum authorities have received the largest and most important ground floor for the display, there being a very attractive lighting arrangement and background provided in this section. It also offers ample room for the approximately two hundred drawings to be hung.

This competition has been recognized as one of great import in the Architectural world, and is considered by architects and instructors to be the supreme test of the quality and ability of the men turned out by the schools. Hence it was decided that a circuit exhibition of these drawings be held, not only for the educational advantages accrued to the students of the respective schools, but in order to give to the general public an opportunity of learning what advancements have been made in the study of Architecture in America.

The drawings have already been on exhibition at Harvard, Massachusetts Institute of Technology and Columbia University. From Pennsylvania they will be sent to Cornell and the University of Michigan. At the finish of their circuit the designs will be returned to their respective schools.

Two of the problems were given out in the competition, Class A problem and Class B problem being a Riding School in the Country. The five schools participating submitted forty-five drawings in Class A and for forty-five in Class B, each school being privileged to submit not more than ten designs in each class.

Pennsylvania won a sweeping victory in Class A, the big problem of the competition, by taking eight of the twelve plaques of honor, included among which were the first prize of $50 and the three honorable mentions. In Class B, Pennsylvania was four of the eight honors, thereby holding well out of the eleventh place awarded.
