NAVAL UNIT ROUTINE COMMENCES TO-NIGHT

Military Discipline Will Start with Assignment of Battalion to Permanent Quarters.

MORE NAVAL AVIATORS NEEDED

By tropical practice the entire personnel of the ship will be brought on deck, and the regular daily routine will be observed. Tuesday trucks loaded with mattresses and blankets were brought from Flsh Island and distributed among the barracks, as the first allotment of the new equipment for the newly enlisted sailors. The equipment will be compelled to carry the men of the different barracks that are to be billeted here, and mattresses and blankets were brought from their local stores. It is granted these men until Saturday. It is to provide the newly enlisted men with a temporary billet until their permanent quarters are assured.

Two men were discharged. The one assigned quartermaster, starting tomorrow, will maintain booths in the various railroad stations. All experience is necessary. There is yet no assurance that the school will be completed. Although all predictions were that it would be completed by the first of November, the opening day was advanced one week.

There is yet no assurance that the women students may take part in the cheerleading. Professor Cheynoy, of the Department of Physical Education, states that the athletic associations now In formation, 00-club, women's athletic club, and the political will be changed from co-ed rooters, it is possible for the women students to become rooters, but it is not possible for them to form a team.

At present no students are present on the campus, and intercompany contests will be arranged with the nearby BOCOer. Although over-subscription is possible for over a week, due to the fact that women students are present, it is possible for all classes to be on the field to-day to report to Manager Ram Stewart, athletic manager, who will report to Manager Ram Stewart, athletic manager, who will report the College, in speaking of the plans now In formation, 00-club, women's athletic club, and the political will be changed from co-ed rooters, it is possible for the women students to become rooters, but it is not possible for them to form a team.
Your news on regular view. Suggestions will be held in the dormitories, not merely of sanitary condition, but also of cubicle-like comfort. The old uni-sec habits of the college student must now give way to the military manner of the prospective officers. The few who object to those restrictions will have other confirming or referring to a court.

Many students will not be able to understand why they should not leave the doors to their rooms and wash out the furnaces on the door. It is well to understand just why we do everything. The habit of having a certain place for a certain thing is a valuable habit in many. But, of course, there is a great amount of benefit in doing a thing according to orders, whether we want to or not. It is easily seen that such an apparently trivial matter as military drill can form a valuable part of our military training.

An institution is no stronger than the opinions within that institution makes it. First year matriculates are asking "Who is the old Pennsylvania Spirit?" The answer of this question involves vitally the honor of the University. The duty of every upper student is to answer all such questions satisfactorily, but be so filled with that Pennsylvania Spirit that it will permeate every inch of campus and make such questions unnecessary.

Pennsylvania is no longer the Pennsylvania of two years ago. Spirit, bowing näiles, campus flags and lively contests with rival colleges have not been possible. Opportunities no longer exist in every detail for the new room to assimilate Pennsylvania through those sources. All that remain are splendid memories and sacred traditions. These, however, are of minor extraordinary worth with correct preparations they alone are sufficient to carry the University through the crises. This spirit of ours is in grow even in the extraordinary and is hundred and sixty-nine years of its existence. But it believes the mission of present Pennsylvania students is to assimilate that spirit in its glorious hours to exhibit new to those whom the centurions are not of Pennsylvania. It is our duty to exhibit the Pennsylvania Spirit spirit by the example set by our predecessors. We should never tire of selling Pennsylvania's past. Few of the thousand new matriculates know that Pennsylvania has more living or deceased alumni than any other university, with the single exception of Harvard, or that they were more signs of the Declaration of Independence from Pennsylvania than from any other university. These are isolated facts, but instead of them have built up our incomparable tradition of being. The present calls as "The University of the American Presidents!" You will not permit the new edition which is being forged by new men to force Pennsylvania's old existence.
