From the recompense of the full college curriculum, they will be able to continue the studies they have lived and to take up others.

This return to normal conditions will undoubtedly be attained by January 2, and will be effected with little confusion in the question of credits.

Undergraduate activities will once more spring up on the campus. The "college spirit" so suddenly quelled will be enhanced because only the most desirable, the most ambitious students will remain on the campus. Class activities and rivalries will revive where they left off. Athletics will enjoy results due to the unusual physical health and activity of the student body. Social events and club organization will be doubled because of the diversified interests and more extensive freedom of the students. Fraternities will again try to seek on the best material the campus can offer.

The friendships that have been formed on the drill field will be continued and strengthened in the class-room, on the campus and in the clubs. They will lead up to the time when at class reunions we will look back upon the day when we unexpectedly took up our education here at the university's invitation. Military training in a less restricted form will undoubtedly be possible for those who wish to take up the course of tactics.

To many the financial question will be a barrel-made obstacle. Let us remind them and encourage them for the many possibilities of "working a way through." Cases of just such effort are on file in the bureau's office and in the annals of the Christian Association, both of which offers gladly assist the securing of employment. The comparatively small expenditures are outweighed by the success of after-life. College will mean to them an investment—not of speculation, but of "staff" and perseverance.

The University, strengthened and rejuvenated by the war, offers a golden opportunity to non-desiring an education, and to those who realize what Pennsylvanians stand for, it extends a welcome hand.

Chief among the problems confronting college men for the next few months will be that of the advisability of spending further time in military training. Everyone, to use the new prevalent expression, is "fed up" on caressing and kindred subjects, but that is no sufficient reason for dropping them. The question at stake is the advisability of the R. O. T. C. in itself; reality, the old spin of preponderance has the government any further need for trained men? Until the Peace Conference has declared upon and put into effect some such scheme as the "League of Nations," and until discriminated because universal, no government can be safe without the material ready for mobilization in an emergency, and they who have been opportunities for preparing themselves are the college men.

One hour a day spent in drilling or bayonet work serves the double purpose of athletics and military training, yet surely it would not be enough to interfere seriously with academic work.

Why should not the government give more to the colleges the rifles and uniforms which have just been leased? Now that the crying need for materials to be used in active service is not of prices where such things can be of more help to the country. Conditions are ideal for the re-establishment of R. O. T. C. training at the colleges, and there ought to be no difficulty in getting the students to volunteer for the work.

Gives Lecture on Astronomy. "Our Stellar Universe: How We Learn of Its Mass, Extent and Slow Development," was the subject discussed by Dr. Eric Otto, Professor of Astronomy, in the auditorium of Houston Hall at 2:30 on Saturday afternoon. This was the fourth of the faculty lectures delivered this season, and was attended by a fair-sized audience. Dr. Mottles presented to his hearers a fairly accurate picture of the past and recent discoveries in his field of work, a number of which he has himself made.

Cercle Francais Will Meet. At the regular meeting of the Cercle Francais, Wednesday at 7:30, in Houston Hall, Professor Halbrook will deliver an interesting lecture. A joint entertainment has been decided upon by the Cercle Francais and the Palais students, the women's social organization. This entertainment will take place a week from Wednesday.
