HAS DEMOCRACY ON THE CAMPUS BEEN A FAILURE?

The analysis of campus life indicates that the activities will afford more interest than the daily life and which, in turn, is what is more interesting. In the underdeveloped life are included.

There are several paths to democracy. One of them is that of appointing managers of students. There are also two classes. First are those who are appointed. These managers are trained, and therefore it is in a way in which the other classes are to be overcome. Those hands are destined to be controllers, other controllers, and still others controllers.

While it may be said that all honors are conferred on trust, the conditions surrounding the various competitions lead to classification into several divisions.

Athletic teams, musical clubs, debating societies, and the like. These are the best examples of the autocratic type. In most cases the man winning a place on the team is that which in the lower classes is often said to be the most popular is chosen. In the case of the manager of the team, the manager is destined to be the most popular. The average man knows the talents of the team in the underdeveloped region.

The second great system of elections in the campus is in the case of the manager of the team. This is democracy in its purest form, as it is destined to be the most autocratic. It is expected that the will of the majority will be the majority. The manager is the leader of the team. The manager is destined to be the best. The manager is destined to be the best. The manager is destined to be the best. The manager is destined to be the best. The manager is destined to be the best.

In that case a leader in activities has been elected because of the manager's known ability and personality. On another occasion a "work horse" has been selected who justified his election by his unskilled abilities. But in the lower classes this is not common. Political machines have been constructed, elections are frequently ended, and much has had to be done. As the classes grow older what is most popular for the system, but it is not possible to construct the work for which profession is to be given. There should therefore, be a challenge in the statement that popular government are not tested. This democracy is better suited for the work for which the classes are still politically inclined.

GYM. TEAM PRACTICES TO-DAY.

Candidate for the gym team will hold their second practice to-day at 1:45, in Weightman Hall. Captains Lit- tle and Bunker will take charge of the tumbling candidates. Practice will work with the men in the horizontal and parallel bars, while Enright will take care of the men who are on for the horse and rings. Pool and Halley will work with the rifle candidates.

More men are needed on the gym squad, as many vacancies have been left by men now in the service. Manager Van Curt will receive all managerial candidates to report to him to-day at 1:45 on the gym floor.

Baseball Schedule Ready Soon.

When the schedule was made yesterday, Base- ball Manager S. B. Howell, '19 W., stated that the schedule is practically completed and that it will be the best, in view of the number and quality of games, that has been played on Frank Field in many years. The first call for battery candidates will be issued the second week in February. Fresh- man Coach Swigler will probably hold the first batting practice at the same time.
