THE PENNSYLVANIAN

THE NEW ADMINISTRATION.

With this issue the newly-elected standing board of the Class of 1930 takes over the reins of The Pennsylvanian. Although extremely respectful of the efforts and the work of those who have preceded us, we come into our positions with the resolve that we can and will do even better than has been done before. But with this feeling of assured success is coupled a full and healthy recognition of the work to be done and the responsibility to be borne before turning over the reins one year distant to the representatives of the Class of 1931. The issues which confront us next year will, in all probability, not differ greatly from those that have faced each successive board. The student body of the Pennsylvania, athletic association, student politics, and campus campaigns will still be the storm centers around which will revolve all columns and columns of discussions until the campus critic may finally feel that a host of trustees, a president, and a faculty, are no longer necessary. When The Pennsylvanian so boldly admits its student body, so many of its members must be at least somewhat versed in elementary algebra. It seems to be a queer situation to be described individually as regards each subject.

CAMPAIGNING.

"Buy a Bond!"

"I have my button."

Thus do many a student escape the needs which are seeking bonds in all corners. There, however, seems to be a certain possibility that somebody has been doing a big business in "V" but without appreciably increasing the amount of subscriptions to the bond.

HORRORS!

It happened at a party dance in Scarton during the Easter holidays. A student of this University had just been introduced to a pleasant, fair- haired, senior high school girl as his partner for that number. "You are a University man, aren't you?"

"Yes."

"Well, I am going to take a business course at the Wharton School next year myself," was the astounding statement she made.

The disturbed undergraduate could only tip his hat, offer his reply and admit to himself that coeducation was becoming more attractive.

Verily, Wharton school now seems to be in competition with the International Correspondence School as a school of business training.

SOUTHEASTERN DISPENSARY
BENEFIT DANCE TO-MORROW

Woodhull Hall will be the scene of a dance to be given to-morrow for the benefit of the Southeastern Dispensary. This will be the first dance of its kind at this institution, and will be followed by a series of similar functions to be held at intervals throughout the year. The dance will be opened with a reception of the society members, followed by the selection of the refreshments, and the music will be furnished by the lecture for dancing.

University students who have practical experience in this charitable institution, which is supported by the Dr. Head of the Maternity Dispensary, will be able to supply any necessary assistance in the matter of refreshments before being granted increased as plaintiffs in many of these cases. H. J. ZING COMPANY HAS
POSITIONS FOR SENIORS

Members of the graduating class are offered unusual opportunities for positions with the New Jersey Zinc Company. The company wishes to get insight with a few college men who de-
to prove to themselves with the business in its different departments.
This offer is for a permanent position.
It will necessitate a stay of six to
years in a job in the mines, plants,
or various departments, during which the man will be able enough to afford a comfortable living, and after the assignment of a permanent position, the salary will depend on the individual ability of the man.

Considering the advantages of this offer any inquire further into this matter by writing to the New Jersey
Zinc Company, at 150 Front street,
New York City. The company states that if there are several men inter-tested in this offer they will send on a representative of the company, who will take up the proposition in detail
with them.

The New Jersey Zinc Company is the largest producer of high-grade zinc products in this country. The development of these products has been rapid, and there is every opportunity for a high-grade man to advance him-selves rapidly in this line of work.
