A DANCE WORTHY OF SUPPORT.

Medical students of the University are given a chance tonight in Weights n Hall for the benefit of the South ern, Society, a branch of the University Alpine Club. To the average student the undergraduate department shows its appreciation of the knowledge of the Medical School. But even the most innocent will know what this means when it is said that Houdinny's Orchestra will present the dances of从 1.30 to 4.30, for the benefit of the Rockefeller disciples. This fact, coupled with the seriousness of the purpose of the dance, should lead many undergraduates to support the efforts of the Medical students in Weights Hall tonight. It will be interesting to see how many of the students in the past from the members of this professional school.

THE MAIN SHOW AND THE SIDE SHOWS.

There can be no doubt that the gradual tendency in our University belies itself to be drawn from the main show or the side show and to center on the interest in the actual side show attractions. Hence the critical statements made in the communication appearing elsewhere in this column, for the grade of the student is not as noticeable from the standpoint of facts as they are in the matter of subject and frankness.

Probably not many a student would be willing to state that the faculty has been too liberal. In the large teaching staff such as we have, with over with the exception of the members, it is difficult for some to suggest that some should gain the reputation among the students as being "soft" and others as being "rigid." It is largely up to the students themselves to decide whether he will carry an exciting or easy course. As a general rule, each student's record carries some of both types. Not many students can be found who will admit that their work has been not been good enough to gain them, nor will many faculty members admit that they have any more difficulty in guiding the called "benevolent" students to offices in their classes.

The fact remains, however, that a man may go through college in one of two ways: either by putting every of effort into his work and getting in consequence a maximum of return, or by putting in only a minimum of effort and reaping only a minimum return. There is no denying the argument that the outside activities connected with college life are of great value in this thing to that, but this is only true in so far as the students participate do not come into the class which gives the more number of its duties.

For this reason, the limiting of the students' activities is under discussion by many authorities, and attain national at Pennsylvania. The decision is now past and the vote which should be of the class, majority is not to vote. In the case of papers and chairman of the various committees. Something is bound to be shifted, and the chances are that in the future the side shows will be the scientific education which is most easily

COMMUNICATION.

Adviser of the Y. U. P. Student Union

With the increase in number and increase in the curriculum activities, the tendency has been recently for not by the students but by the faculty to skim the scholar's standards of University. Our answer are those only of "Get yourself" efforts, and make a credit is secured a little more in the case of the non-scholar than in the case of the scholar. It has become evident that it is only through effort and scholarship that we can in and eleven-lunbger-armed.

The blame for this situation can not be placed solely on either faculty or students. Men bound with outside work are naturally not both to accept credit from the educational professions, and as a result they get further away from a standard of education to save them from the benefits of college education. The faculty, finding the student less responsible, and excusing themselves in negligible college, it makes it easier for them to slide through—and the educational chain begins another round, away from student...

It is this changing climate of the pri-ety of studies in a "student's" life. The vital point in the education is the re-signing of the many college Students of the, and we will have plenty of time after we leave the University. The real reason for coming to an institution of learning is to learn.

A remedy for this might be found, as we suggested some time ago, in limiting the number of important of files which one man may hold, and second, in raising, not the entrance, but the "continuance" requirements enough to make them apparent throughout the term. The answer may be that learning is not compulsory, that the students are paying—but, let them take what they wish. But this is an institution running on a product, and if the natural talent is not perfectly trained to form, the need for the University would automatically be abolished. There is nothing necessary necessary for such a bunch of cerial materials could be sent to the public libraries and museums.
