LAWRENCE WILL SPEAK

- N. J. In 1912, and continued with him as correspondent of the New York Evening Post, has been secured as one of the speakers of the annual dinner of the Franklin Society, to be held in the University, those who attend will have a rare treat in afternoon speeches. It was hoped that, F. C. Curtis, E. L., the former manager of the Associated Press in America, would be the third speaker, but it is possible that in coming to work in conjunction with the President.

Mr. Lawrence, who is a newspaperman and a representative of the University of Philadelphia, but has made his home in Washington at recent times, although a young man in the early thirties, is the oldest of the Washington correspondents. Joining the Washington Bureau of the Associated Press shortly after production of the evening paper, he has worked with all the national and international papers.

Because of his intimate friendship with President Harrell, he is sent here to interpret his ideas, Mr. Lawrence has been called the "good conscience of W. N. J.," in 1912, and continued with him in the bureau of the Associated Press, two years at the White House. He is a keen observer of the news, and does a much wider work than that of his friend.

ELECTIONEERING AND VANDALISM.

A meeting of the Executive Committee of the Junior Class, associated with the Undergraduate Council, decided to call for a new election. It is expected that in this balloting, to be held on Thursday, Juniors will think enough of the dignity and honor of their own class not to permit a repetition of the former fiasco. There will only be two men running for the office at this election.

There are several committees required in a good president. He should have character; he should have initiative and faculty for management; he should be a good speaker, pleasing personally; he should be one who has, by past performance, that he is interested in the University and in his class. Let the vote tomorrow be on such a basis.

The events of the war. Only recently he has returned from the Peace Conference at Paris, where again he has been foremost of the correspondents in duplicating the actions of President Wilson.

Mr. Lawrence's articles have been syndicated in twelve of the leading newspapers of the country, and many of his war stories have appeared in the Saturday Evening Post and other leading magazines during the past year. Previous to this war war, Mr. Lawrence was detailed by the Associated Press to Mexico, where he wrote dispatches on the Mexican revolution and later on the Ozama affair. His experiences with that turbulent country have placed him as an expert in delving into the Mexican troubles. Recently he published a pamphlet, entitled "The Truth About Mexico."

Members of the faculty who wish to attend the dinner may make reservations at the office of the Pennsylvania Tenant before 5 o'clock today. Associates who wish to attend must have their tickets also before this time, in order that the committee may be able to send out the final list of guests for the dinner.
