Pennsylvania has now arrived at the end of one of the most unique years in her history. It would be unfair to say that it was the most unique, because at other times of national emergency or great University has had to suspend its ordinary activities for the general good of the country. In fact, in one previous war the buildings of the University were even used by the forces of the United States Army.

But certainly this has been a strange year. The University opened last fall with a military camp where military and academic instruction was continued in the training of its men. That the experiment was not a great success is probably not so much due to the character of the plan as to its administration and the length of time necessary to place it on a working basis. The brightest spot of the whole experiment was that the University part of the program did not fall down in any respect, and was carried through with the same quiet efficiency which marks the normal school year.

With the signing of the armistice and the order for demobilization the need for a redemption of academic training on a pre-war basis was imminent. Not a moment was lost, and on January 4, the new school term began with an enrollment which, if not up to former standards, was indeed creditable. Every day for several succeeding weeks saw former students returning to their studies direct from the great training centers in this country and from overseas service. In less than a month’s time thekhaki had given way to the khaki hat, with no more somber colors of civilian clothes.

Student activities during the period of almost suspension. Aside from the S. A. T. C. football team and the Pennsylvania very little remained that was characteristic of the University of the year before, and even though they were of a standard hardly recognizable with that of the past. But the work of reconstruction was fast. Within two weeks the Undergraduate Council brought about the reformation of the class organizations. The athletic program started by the efforts of Graduate Manager Maylin J. Pickerill was given added impetus by the return of Graduate Manager Maylin J. Pickering from the service. The belated rushing season was standardized and enrollment in being one of the most successful from a financial and team standpoint ever held. Practically every spring sport team was reorganized, and, together with the movement for mass athletics, as exemplified by the interfraternity competition, bought up the greatest number of men ever participating in athletics at this University.

Pennsylvania has had its own special program, a complete one. The Mass and Wig Club got on a new style of performance in the spring of a revue, a revue that chronic pessimists said that such a departure was too much as a shock. But in one week seven different plays were presented by various organizations. The Philomathean and Zealographic societies, the various sectional, state and other honorary societies, the departmental associations, the publications, and all the other kindred organizations which for years have added tone and character to our campus came out of retirement and with rejuvenated spirit exhibited more activity than ever before. One may not have been built in a day, but certainly our University has been brought back to life in a few months.

The thought to be gained by this wonderful recovery is that it is, in fact, very little great and represents the height of our achievements. Rather it is that the spirit which rebuilt the activities this year is to carry us to even greater heights in the year which is to come. As we go forward into the future, we must remember that almost all of us are filled with the spirit "Just wait until next year." There seems to be good reason for this general sentiment of optimism. Our academic year began with an enrollment which, if not so much due to the old excuse "on account of the war." Present indications point to next year being the greatest one since the University has ever experienced. The compulsory Athletic Association membership has at last supplied the long-wanted financial guarantee necessary to launch up a more expansive and extensive sports program.

upon the Class of 1923. Every Fresh-

There is always a reason why!

MURADS are made of 100% pure Turkish tobacco—the world's most famous tobacco for cigarettes—grown about the Black Sea, in the Orient.

MURADS are also the world's largest selling high-grade Turkish cigarette—and their greatest increase in sales in any year was in 1918.

Now don't you agree, there is always a reason?

It is true that "ordinary" cigarettes cost a trifle less.

Judge for yourself—!
