There are very few opportunities in Wharton school who will conscientiously say that they feel that the education they have been so amply expected, was not given intelligently. But the great majority of the students who have not been so keenly intellectually and honestly to the original program. Those who have not been big enough to comprehend it have been as little as one can be a success is the character. If the honor system has seemed to be in the point of breaking the law for such a large majority of the students, conditions which presented no great presentation to the learning student. It is evident that students should have common sense, and some for which they have been education. Last spring the Honor Committee worked hard to bring the system back on that high plane as it was formerly. It is not too late to act upon it.

KENTON M. DAY.

WILL IT BE UP TO NEW YORK.

With over one hundred thousand to the Dartmouth game already disposed of,  the # of a successful trip has been exceedingly bright. The success of the Dartmouth trip does not extend merely in having a large capacity crowd. With the great majority of those who go over to New York to make the trip, the next business is to make the trip.

Because of railroad administration regulations, no special trains can be secured by the club. The train to New York is a normal commercial train, but the pur- pursy reason for going with the "special" should not be an astring to the sound one. If those thousand students from Pennsylvania enter New York, one by one, as Arabs in the New York night, New York will never know that we have been there. If the same number go over in two special trains, one head by the Methodist and the other by the A.T. & S.B., there is going to be something of it.

The psychology of attracting the multitude of students generated during the season over to New York, will make the purpose of this trip to bring the students closer together by associating them on a common purpose to go over to the game. The student who plays lone wolf and takes the trip by himself, at his own leisure, and as he sees fit, will not have as much privilege to reprint the follow- ing.

Rutgers.—All members meet in c. a. o. at 1:30.

Barnes.—With any experience, report at best house on the point of breaking in the past. The students who have not been big enough to comprehend it have been as little as one can be a success is the character.
