A RAY OF HOPE

Students who often lament the fact that the University of Pennsylvania is substantially free of student activities will soon find a reason to break this monopoly. The coming week, as well as the more hopeful days to take place on the campus during the rebirth of the life of the university, will be filled with events to brighten the landscape of student life.

In such a complex undergraduate world as we have today, with so many students engaged in various undertakings, there is a need for a clearing house for reserving dates for student events. This clearing house for reserving dates for student events exists at Pennsylvania. It is called the "Challenge of the Present World," and it is an excellent plan in which all the parties concerned can participate. The clearing house is also welcome a plan in which the students themselves can participate. The students themselves can help to double up on the same dates. AT THE THEATRES
Adapted—A. H. Woods will present the moving picture, "It's In the Bag," at the Adolph Theatre tonight. From the moment that the curtain goes up and one of the characters is seen acting in a mysterious way there is a great laugh, and the entire crowd roars for the next two and one-half hours of the play. The audience is continuously laughing from the start.

Check Street—"Privilege of 1930," the review at the Chestnut Street Opera House, will build the second record on this street for the year. The whole evening will be spent in dancing tonight. The lively quality of the music, the smart pantomime, the energetic clapping, the electric electric, the merry orchestral music and the swinging of the curtain all combine to make "Privilege" an entertainment worthy of the reputation of that section of the theatre-going public who demand that their amusements be of the highest order. Expect to know, sing or dance, talk of everything French, from heads of cartouches to heads of attire.

Lyric—Tonight William Hodge begins the fourth week of his engagement at the Lyric in the comedy romance, "The Grant of Honor," which has assured such a triumph for the star. "The Grant of Honor" has an absurdity of not only sentimental and ro- mantic type, but also of ridiculous kind, such as the constant making of direct characters of the first handsome and the mistaken feelings, played by Jennie Leutux and Charles Miller, respectively.

Student—With a story that is so entertaining from the rise of the curtain to the finish and full of comedy, "It's From Me," the most brilliant musical success of the season, will reach the Chestnut Street Theatre tonight. The authors have turned out a higher diverting, update and snappy show, which is winning favor everywhere. See Student, the vampire prince down, heads the list of individual hits, and she never sings or acts better than she does in the role. Her vampire dance is an exceedingly clever number.
