ELEONORE INITIATES EXTENSIVE HOUSE ACTIVITY

The Ethical Literary Society is planning to make this the biggest year in its 50 years of activity by enlisting the interest of a number of local organizations. The society has taken "over the walls" Saturday after noon, and its efforts will be devoted to spreading its interest on the campus in drama, politics, debating, and music.

The presentation of this play, held in Philadelphia and in other cities, was discussed at the regular weekly meeting last night. The society also plans to take a banquet for the members shortly after the Christmas holidays. The enactment of the Lord's Prayer is the plan for the week following the New Year. Those who have not yet paid their dues will be given an opportunity to do so.

The society welcomes all interested students.

EIGHTH PROVOST MAN OF LETTERS

Henry Vethake, born in South American Province, brought to America at Age of Four

PROFESSOR IN EIGHT COLLEGES

Born in South America, professor in eight different colleges of America, and the eighth Provost of the University is a summary of the record of Henry Vethake, one of the most learned members of the list of leaders of Pennsylvania in the long history. Provost Vethake was born in Brazil's Guiana, South America, in 1790, and died in Philadelphia December 16, 1866. A record of his 65 years of life goes to the world a knowledge of a profound thinker, an earnest scholar and a benefactor. It shows a man with rare adaptability in many subjects of wisdom and it explains one of the reasons for the eminence of Pennsylvania as a place of learning.

Dr. Vethake was brought to America when he was four years of age. Little is known of his youth except that he was a graduate of Columbia College in 1810 and that he received the degree of Master of Arts from that institution two years later. Intending to follow the profession of law, he studied to that end, but an offer of the position as instructor in mathematics at Colburn altered his life and in 1813 he began in the profession that he followed throughout his existence.

The next twenty-three years were spent in teaching the students of eight American colleges, including Pennsylvania. For various lengths of time he was professor in Rutgers, Princeton, Dickinson, University of New York, Columbia, Pennsylvania, and the Philadelphia Polytechnic College. He occupied the president's chair at Washington College and taught such subjects as mathematics, natural philosophy, moral philosophy and political economy. His competence in the Polytechnic at Pennsylvania came in 1836, following a number of years on the teaching staff.

He retained this position until 1844, influencing the life of the school as profoundly as any other leader had before. During his administration various changes were completed and the effects of his direction can be felt even to the present. In 1844 he resigned as Provost and became professor of higher mathematics in the Polytechnic College of this city. This position he held in an honorary degree until his death.

Henry Vethake's life was one of continued research and study. In 1821 he was elected a member of the American Philosophical Society and was given the degree of Master of Arts and Doctor of Laws by Princeton and Columbia respectively. He was the author of a treatise on political economy and wrote a number of mathematical articles for the Encyclopaedia Americana. A large picture of him in the same magazine, at the time he was active in the University, can be seen in Dr. Pendleton's office in College Hall, where it has been taken after his removal from the University chapel. It was painted by one of America's celebrated artists and was a strong tribute to the memory of a great Provost.

NOTES JAPANESE VISITOR TO ADDRESS FOREIGN STUDENTS

Mr. Seigo Osakatani, a prominent Japanese business man, will speak at the regular Friday evening social to be given at 8.15 tonight by the International Students' Home. He arrived yesterday in Philadelphia and, escorted by a number of Japanese students, viewed the buildings and grounds of the University under weather conditions quite new to him.

Mr. Osakatani's main purpose in coming to the United States is to study management methods in this country. He has spent considerable time in the West, paying special attention to the production and distribution of petroleum. After a week's stay in Philadelphia he expects to visit Florida and Cuba to study sugar production.

Besides the talk by Mr. Osakatani, there will be also a musical program. An invitation to attend is extended to all undergraduates of the University.

AN ENTERTAINMENT COMMITTEE

The Pennsylvania is publishing below a communication written in reply to an editorial appearing Tuesday entitled "A Word of Advice." In that editorial the Pennsylvania pointed out the possibilities of following the example set by the Junior Class in appointing small committees.

The Pennsylvania is constrained to question the objection raised by the writer of the communication. While it is true that we do not know how well their duties are accomplished, we do not approve of judging a committee by the letter of its constitution. Perhaps ten would know its chairman. Probably no one would be aware of its existence. The Undergraduate Council, Interfraternity Council, or the Senior Societies would take cognizance of its importance, and its achievements would win for the council a name that would become one of the best known in the student body.

American in an office is in an effort to close the evident misunderstanding that the opportunities have regarding the policy of the Freshman class. In a recent issue of your paper I advocated the appointment of a Freshman Committee as the chairman of the Freshman Banquet Committee. The large committees for the purposes that have appeared in the Pennsylvania was composed of seven men, the number appointed to the Freshman class.

The large or unwise committee now in existence is not the result of a cooperative committee which I, under stand, was appointed to the present number of the office of the Freshman chairman.

The Class of 26 has the best Interests of the University at heart and is only too glad to accept the advice that the committee of seven men would be appointed. The Class of 26 has the best Interests of the University at heart and is only too glad to accept the advice that the committee of seven men would be appointed.

AS THE YEAR PROGRESSES

The Freshman class has now taken its place at the banquet table. As the year progresses it will become more evident that the policy of the Freshman class is only following the policy of the Freshman class.

The Freshman class is the Freshman class in the College of the University. It is the Freshman class in the College of the University.

JUNIOR VARSITY TO BE FORMED

Grace, Captain of 1921-1922 Team, is to Coach Second Court Squad for 1922 Season

HARD SCHEDULE TO BE PLAYED

Due to the loss of Varsity basketball players through graduation last spring, and the subsequent promotion of many on the Junior Varsity rolls, Bill Graves will begin his duties as coach of the Jay Vee with practically a new squad of players. Graves has been prominent in the Pennsylvania and Blue basketball ranks for the past few years, having played on the championship team of 1919 and having captained the 1921-1922 combination.

As is the case of the Varsity, the development of a team will be the hardest task confronting the new tutor. Two conditions for the good post-season work by the field of competitors. They are Hol- den and Millholten, a baseball and football man, who has reported for basketball for the first time this season. Both of these men will probably be used after they have displayed their wares in the center circle.

In the forward ranks there is plenty of good material. McInerney, of last season's team, appears as the leading candidate on the front line of players who are going to be chosen as members of the Varsity squad. Doyle, from the 1922 freshman combination, is another likely candidate, as is Schaffner, also a veteran of last season. Morris, of last year's freshman back, is back to better than ever and will give all forward aspirants a fight for a berth on this team.

From the year ago fresh team, and these Pennsylvania's motorcycles in the spring, are the leading men for the front rows. None of the positions have been definitely assigned as yet, and all of the above named have opportunities to make the Varsity squad if they work hard in the off season.

The schedule for this combination will be very difficult and will tax the abilities of players and coach. The games in the next few weeks will probably be the hardest we have had to face in the past few seasons. The men to be seen in action this winter are:

We are always ready to talk with young men about our material and construction. These men will be used in all the winter sports and will make the team.

thirteen years in one season. He is now Rev. Edward M. Jeffers, rector of St. Peter's Church at Third and Pine streets.

The Pennsylvania was developed from "The University Magazine," which was named weekly at that time. It was de dicated to start a newspaper and the submergence of the "Magazine" resulted in the formation of the present paper. The editorial of the first issue asks for "contributions of interesting articles to our columns" and the present system of "hunting" was evolved later. The original number contained no advertisements and it was not for three or four months that the idea was attempted. George Wharton Pepper became the second editor-in-chief of the following year and it is said that the paper was a medium for the publication of his literary efforts.

CHRISTMAS ISSUE OF RED AND BLUE PLACED ON SALE

Aiming to give The Bulletin readers the views of the foremost world leaders on the present crisis, arrangements were made by the Bulletin with M. Clemenceau, former Premier of France, to write a series of special articles exclusive of his orations while touring the United States.

Arrangements where then made with LLOYD GEORGE to write special articles for The Bulletin.

In his first article, published last Saturday, the very day M. Clemenceau was a guest in Philadelphia, LLOYD GEORGE made spirited reply in the columns of The Philadelphia Bulletin to some of "the Fingers" Confront-cations.

Lloyd George's answer to Poincare will be printed tomorrow

Be sure to tell your newsdealer or carrier today to save you a copy of tomorrow's Bulletin containing the Lloyd Lloyd George article, and have him serve you regularly so that you will not miss any of his Lloyd George and M. Clemenceau articles.
