CHO-CHR, the Extinguisher ash

They Weighed Air

and Charles II Laughed

SAMUEL PEPPYS says in his diary that Charles II, for all his interest in the Royal Society, laughed uproariously at its members for "spending their time only in weighing of air and doing nothing else since they eat." This helps to explain why Charles has come down to us as the "merry monarch." The Royal Society was engaged in important research. It was trying to substitute facts for the meaningless phrase "nature abhors a vacuum," which had long served to explain why water rushes into a syringe—the common form of pump—when the piston is pulled out.

Denis Papin had as much to do as anyone with these laughable activities of the Royal Society. He was the apothecary who in London one day worked with a cylinder in which a piston could slide. He boiled water in the cylinder. The steam generated pushed the piston out. When the flame was removed, the steam condensed. A vacuum was formed and the weight of the outer air forced the unresisting piston in.

Out of these researches eventually came the steam engine. London talked of the scandalous life that King Charles led, and paid scant attention to such physics as Papin, whose work did so much to change the whole character of industry.

The study of air and air pumps has been continued in spite of Charles's laughter. In the General Electric Company's Research Laboratories, for instance, pumps have been developed which will exhaust all but the last ten-billionths of an atmosphere in a vessel.

This achievement marks the beginning of a new kind of chemistry—"a chemistry that concerns itself with the effect of forces on matter in the absence of air." This chemistry that has already enriched the world with invaluable improvements in illumination, radio communication, and radio-technology.
CREW PRACTICE RESUMED TODAY

Nine crews will be chosen to represent University in American Henley Regatta on May 28.

FROSH CREW TO BE PICKED FRIDAY

Following the two weeks rest during the mid-year examinations crew practice will be resumed today and the schedule of spring training will be inaugurated. Coach Wright is desirous that all candidates for the various crews report to receive their new instructions and start the training. The Varsity tutor will put his pupils through workouts each day for two weeks when weather permitting. The Skull award will change their training quarters to the river and commence the outdoor training.

The Crew mentor specially urges all aspirants for the racing eight to report for the initial workouts as announcements concerning the selection of the Freshman crew which will be selected this week are to be made. "There is much excellent material in the ranks of the Freshman candidates which has not been brought to light yet. These workouts during the week will be the last opportunity to find those men who will comprise the racing eights, and every effort will be exerted to pick the best men for the squad." This is the only statement that the coach would make concerning the coming selections.

Nine crews will be chosen to represent the University in the coming American Henley Regatta to be staged in Philadelphia on May 28. The varsity eight, Junior Varsity, Pennsylvania's championship 120 pound crew, 3rd Varsity, Freshman and 2nd Freshman eights will be entered in the open events, while the 4th and 5th Varsity and 2nd Varsity eight crews will take part in the St. Paul's Cup race. These events will be held the same day under the auspices of the American Rowing Association.
