Sidelights on Footlights

GARRICK—"THE BAL TABARIX"

An old formula is reused in three unattractive acts and four non-octave-stalling scenes wherein the very mellow President Longstreet and his bouncing nephew (first Congressman in typical senatorial sense) embarrassments brought about by the complicating factor of the "Bal Tabarix" idea of camera. The maneuver is appropriately fails here to the versatility of the stage. It proves his relatives and friends who are shown in as other influences. In the boudoir that gives the next morning all is miraculously adjusted. Muddled counselors always have their passing threads with a hesitating finale.

"The Bal Tabarix" is adapted from the French and whatever quirkiness it might possess seems to have been translated out of it—the show merges into the obvious and the skittish quite frequently. The fave is distinctively burlesque, of which the clever Harry K. Mort is top bail. The concluding is colorful but not cheerful. We found the "Bal Tabarix" a paved burlesque but on the other hand it is "not so hot." Neither music nor dancing is extraordinary. Harry Kelly was producer La Corte, a staff comedian, who is really funny. But Nelson enthusiastically assorted several dreamy songs which were good. The gay music was well assisted by Max Wilbur's "Innovent Eyes" and "My Rose" were delightful song hits but the latter sound strangely reminiscent in parts.
