GOLFSMEN WILL OPPOSE YALE AND DARTMOUTH AT NEW YORK

Pennsylvania's golf team will contend with Yale and Dartmouth today in the first round of the Intercollegiate Championship to be held in New York this season. In their games so far, the teams have shown considerable ability, Over Cornell, and have been ranked in the top ten in the Eastern tournament.

Since their last match weekend, the men on the team have embraced a training and conditioning program. They are in great shape for their games today. The penetrates of the Yale and Dartmouth teams are still not fully known, but the men representing the Yale and Dartmouth teams have trained longer and harder than the others.

The Intercollegiate Championship is to be held on Franklin Field May 15 and 16. The Crimson coach, William McKee, is a graduate of the Law school and has been a successful coach for many years.

Two teams from eighteen universities will compete for the championship on the course (New Westminster Biltmore, New York). During the season, the teams will be entertained at guests of the club.

CHARLEY APPLE THINKS IT OVER

Inspired By Hey Day Exercises The Corn Fed From Kansas Outlines Future Plans

WILL ENTER CAMPUS POLITICS

Having heard a great deal about Hey Day for itself and various traditions and ceremonies, I was quite surprised that I found myself enjoying it all above.

The exercises in our own weightings fell more impressive and nearly every whole was there. Faculty and students, freshmen and sophomores, served and the whole scene seemed to wear the good spirit and festivity which prevailed. One direction, student-athletes and other petty worries were crowded into the background. It was a time when everybody was jolly enough to overdo on the gowns and caps. In hotel, Hey Day was quite the party.

When the Jacket, who have been how hard and were called off by a light, and was still able to think. There is no reason why two years hence, that Apple should not be similarly distingushed. By the process of figuring how it would be done to make me off, grade, my plans were formulated, which I fully expected to fulfill.

Due to my prominence in the Freshman Class, I will immediately set up my commissions for the Victorian emblem of the Sophomore Vigilance Committee for next year. This will be a good move on the part of the Class of 1922, since my personality permits me to stand out above the crowd, and I will have the backing of the S. O. I. Hypes an affiliated fraternity-a quite a political factor.

In my Junior year, it is my purpose to be appointed general chairman of the Junior Week, which will be easy, for by then I will be a senior, and will have a firm grasp on other houses thread my way, being snatched by nature, I will be ready to rule the Junior Prom in the fall of 1922. By that time, some small of these, and executive jobs will be up for grabs, and I can build up quite a real and efficient organization.

In the spring of my Junior year, let's divide the R.O.C. and striking trace of my class, it will be quite natural for me to be nominated and elected President of the class for the Senior year. Then Petrick will be proud of me, and the fellow in Blueline will know that Charlie Apple fulfilled his predictions that he would be a big man on the campus, for beefing up the reputation I made during the Freshman year.

I will expand in future issues of the paper in order that fellow-clasman of similar high caliber may have an inspiration for their careers.

COOPERATION AND CENTRALIZATION

In outlining its policy for next year, the Senior President of the class of 1925 hoped upon two points—cooperation and centralization. If the Class of 24 will keep those two points in mind as they go about their work in the year which is just ahead, they can be certain of success. Each is dependent on the other. There can be no cooperation unless there be cooperation: no cooperation unless individuals and organizations are willing to pool their interests for the common good.

Centralization is one of the largest universities in the world. It gathers all the news around the campus and digests it into articles that are published in the official University organ. The editorial column of a newspaper, which includes that constructive, as well as destructive criticism and advice are sought after.

WORTHINGTON—This summer a Philadelphia retailer conducted a survey among six men who have successfully completed their Junior year in order to ascertain which of the Philadelphia retailers had the best service. "We will be interested in finding out what you think of our service," one of the illustrators of the World's Fair said to the student. "We hope you will find our service satisfactory." The illustrator then proceeded to ask the student if he had any questions about the Fair or if he needed any information about the exhibits.
