The Pennsylvania wishes to express on behalf of the student body its sincerest sympathy for a man who has given unstintingly and unselfishly of his best to the University, Thomas K. Ringe, in his recent great loss.

SILVER DAY

From June fourteenth to twenty-second will gather at the Silver Bay Conference representatives from every college by their actions. Such is the case at Silver Bay, for no students is that course more attractive to college men because they are unknown. This misunderstanding may have arisen for reasons. The big thing is—the college student places himself in a broad way. Such acquaintanceships have helped in a roundabout way. Such being the case, they will, of course, to the University has been pointed out In these columns several times. In this latter event, the Endowment is doomed to be wished for. We have been trying for

The White House refuses to be left behind. The day after Beaton put the screen doors on, the White House gave the stunt storm door.

Some people laugh when they hear that it takes 5,000,000 facts in Russia by a pair of shoes, but those same people are probably saving chewing gum wrappers to get a grand prize.

Last week our roommate's father came all the way from home to see his boy. He approached the language and灾 spread among the students. There, Indubitably, without a letup in her scrupulous answered, "Yes, you may live on me."

These barn spirited must be Boy Scouts. At least they do a lot of extra daily.

Already the squatters have taken possession of the Botan ed Gardens.

Of all the evil games we ever saw, frisbee is the winked.

As a last resort the campus has been given to the students to make up their own minds as to what they want themselves. Take a view of the campus, and make plans for the next year.

Don't leave Penn behind," the Pennsylvania exhorts the Seniors. Strange to relate, that is the very thing they would do. They seem to be interested only in the flood of Frosh arrive next fall. Otherwise more than one member of the class of '27 will Inquire there for room and board. When looked at from an abstract viewpoint, it hardly seems possible that any group of men would find it impossible to go through these conferences in a way that would make it worthwhile for them and for other people. The meanest man on the campus is that chap who stoops too low to become interested in such matters. The reason is the Silver Bay Conferences.

Pennsylvania is a large university with a nationwide reputation. Whenever, or wherever Pennsylvania men are represented, others are watching them and judging the University by their actions. Such is the case at Silver Bay. For this reason, it is the duty of the undergraduate body to make sure that Pennsylvania is represented by a large group of students who really represent the University. To be sure that such will be the case, each undergraduate must take it upon himself to do all in his power to attend the conferences. The O. U. A. is ready to help all those desiring to attend; the effort will be helpful and enjoyable. There is no valid reason why Pennsylvania should not be well represented.

ADAM THE ENDOWMENT

Subscription drives Auxiliary Endowment Fund are still away below the amount set by the committee. Just what a failure it is for the Auxiliary Endowment Fund to the University has been pointed out in these columns several times. From the response of the students to the urgent appeals of the committee, it seems that the men who graduate in June fail to realize their responsibility.

No matter what the situation, it is hardly possible that any group of men would find it impossible to make the 72nd Edition of the Student Edition of the Pennsylvanian to be so adorned as to be promoted into the list of alumns. Especially in the case of the men on whom the weight of the world will be upon them, can we afford to neglect this matter? Hence, can we afford theSeniors from taking out insurance policies? The Auxiliary Endowment Fund is nothing more than a reserve fund to be used in the event of the death of an alumnus. It means that it will be many years before Pennsylvania University gets to the point where the endowment is an obligation to be fairly assumed.

The Class of '23 has done much that seemed impossible. They have never fallen down in the plot. For this reason, it is the hope of everyone that they will come through in the few days remaining and put the Endowment across in a really big way. They can do it—the question is, are they willing to take the time and the trouble?

RELATIONS BODY OFFERS REPORT

On the merits of the

Said report, which was requested whereby possible to use their influence upon some of the faculty and students who were about to make their selection of Universities. It was in response to this letter that the committee was instructed to see some of the prominent men in this city who had previously received no literature about the University which would supply them with the necessary information in the prospective accept- ance. This fact has been added to through the committee at the request of some of our men who were desirous of obtaining information which would assist, in their proper selection. This committee is to be congratulated upon the excellent effort which was made, and the Committee will be pleased to have the opportunity of further promoting the interests of the schools. The persons of which is of the highest authority.

Among the literature first sent out was an elaborate yet comprehensive brochure showing actual photographs of the campus and interesting views of the University life. There was no reading material in the brochure. This was followed shortly afterwards by an illustrated course of Franklin Field, which exploded with an apparatus in the spring by a private school. The objective of this is that this was mailed, and a copy of each of these was published to the reading rooms of all schools in the vicinity. Students, descriptive of the dormitory and campus life. It is important to note that they have all been placed at the disposal of these schools.

Pamphlets were also distributed to the student of the student of the liberal arts who desires to learn more about the University. These brochures were in most cases. They are excellent reading material for the freshman preparatory school.
