VETERINARY STUDENT HURT

SARAH C. H. B., 1924, had her hair cut off by a blow in an explosion which occurred in her laboratory on Monday.

E. A. Rebb, '24, took the 24th Street line, which was to be the Penn-Penn route. He was taken to the University Hospital, where it was found that his injuries were not serious. The cause of the explosion is not known, but it is believed that a chemical reaction took place.

The explosion was caused by the presence of potassium with potassium chromate. When he was brought to the hospital, Rebb had been burned on the face and head and he was cut off by the blow. He is now in the hospital being treated for his injuries.

Second Varsity Sent Through Long Hard Drill on Raymond Field

VETERINARIAN GIVEN LIGHT WORKOUT

With the Maryland game a thing of the past, Coach Young and his assistants put in an all day practice yesterday which was both good and fast. The scrimmage, which were most vivid in Saturday's blink in last year's game, was the theme of the day. The offense by no means looked losing, but the defense, which has made a point of being so, was a little off. The team in general showed the support which coach Young and his assistants had been waiting for.

SOPHOMORE AUCTIONS

Nouns of discussion are to be heard from many student classes who witnessed the Sophomore Auction in front of the Banister Building last fall. This means of punishment, as shown effective in some instances, is an absolute failure when conducted as it is at present by the Vigilance Committee. The reaction of any freshman to one of these childish exhibitions of discipline can be nothing but contrary to that intended.

The Vigilance Committee seems to have lost sight of the purpose of freshman regulations. It is not to humiliate the first-year man or to make them feel ashamed of themselves every time they appear on the campus. It is not to expel, not to prevent. The real aim is to unify the first-year man and to help build up a strong class spirit—to make better Pennsylvanians of them.

The form of punishment as practiced during the past year amounts to more in the general school than in the University. It could be effectively used with children, but not with college men. Because of the method, the effects of the sophomores are not only ineffective, but cause just the opposite effect. Discipline, when so administered, leaves a feeling of contempt rather than shame and repentance—a determination to credit "cosy" rather than a resolution in ability to stand. The disciplining is vindication of regulations to the freshmen that they are not the only ones to act, but the rest. The Vigilance Committee seems to have lost sight of the fact that there are regulations. Let the sophomores strictly enforce their rules as laid down, but let them keep in mind the aims of freshman regulations and employ a more fitting and effective method of enforcement.

THE MILLENNIUM

One of the most excellent professors recently made a statement in class to the effect that if he had his way he would be able to get the student out of the classroom and into the real world. He believed in the spirit of the student and for that reason was critical of the standard of university work greatly improved.

One solution to this problem arising from the agitation over the present merchandised cut system would seem virtually a subject for hilarity, but when one reads it, one finds that there is nothing new about it, but that it is entirely a reversal of the forms now in force in the greatly admired foreign universities. It is a well-known fact that in the German universities at attendance is optional, that the family of the University of Paris takes a rest of classes, and yet the individual standard of their graduate does not seem to be particularly low—quite the contrary. A man who can secure a degree at these universities without considering whether in this country or in other countries is the proof of mental ability. The general rule seems to be to have the students study more at home than in class, for they are not afraid to wear or overdo things, but do not care what is there. This is a fact that would be of interest to the students abroad who are not in the same place. We therefore conclude that a good education is better than a good one.
